Translator's Dedication

This humble effort is dedicated to the memory of the Imaam, the Zaabid, the Faqeeh, the Allaamab, Sbaykb Muhammad ibn Saalih al-'Uthaymeen (rabima-bullaab):

I first met the Sbaykb in Ramadhaan 1414 Hijree / February 1994, when a group of British and American students were invited to sit with him after the Asr prayer in a private room within al-Masid al-Haraam, Makkah.

I was fortunate to have met the Shaykh a number of times since. My last meeting with the Sbaykh was when I accompanied him to his hotel after his daily lecture proceeding the Fajr prayer in al-Masiid al-Haraam on 28 Ramadhaan 1420 Hijree / 27 December 1999.

The demise in the health of the Shaykh hurt us all much, and the news of his death caused many to tremble, particularly when we reflect upon the statement of the Sbaykbs in Jordan who stated that the calamity in losing Sbaykb Ibn 'Uthaymeen was actually greater than that of the loss of both Imaam Ibn Baaz and Imaam al-Albaanee, both of whom passed away in 1999. The reason being that:
"...when the first one died, we said two of them still remain, and when the second one died we said, the third one still remains, and then when the last of them has (now) died, then bere we say, with sadness that fills the hearts and tears that fill the eyes, 'who has remained?'..."

We pray to Allaah that he grants those who remain from the Imaams of Ablus-Sunnab and its Shuyookb much success in clarifying the way that was traversed by those that have passed away, aameen.

From Abul-Ahwas from 'Abdullaah (ibn Mas'ood):
"Let not any one of you blindly follow in bis religion any person such that if be believes, you believe and if he disbelieves you disbelieve. But if you (wish to be) followers (of any one), then (follow) those who have passed away, for verily, the living one is not secure from tribulation."

And also from Masrooq from ‘Abdullaah (ibn Mas'ood):
"Do not blindly follow men with regard to your religion, but if you refuse, then by the dead, not the living." (al-Laalikaa.ee 1/93).

Translator's Note to First Edition

Indeed all praise is due to Allaah alone, who has allowed this book "The Book of Knowledge" - Volume One, to be made available in the English language. We pray to Him to grant favour upon this effort and to make it of benefit to both Muslims and non-Muslims. May Allaah guide us all to the 'right path', the path of the Prophet, Muhammad (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam), and His Companions (radhi-yAllaahu 'anhum).

Firstly, whoever finds any mistake in the following work; either in the translation or typesetting, then please write to me (at my email address), indicating the mistake and its location, along with the correct translation.

"Our Lord! Punish us not if we forget or fall into error..."1 1 The Noble Qur:aan - Soorah al-Baqarah, Aayah 286.

I thank all those who will point out any mistakes and correct the translation with the intention of seeking Allaah's Pleasure. Indeed, Allaah is Surety over what I say.

Additionally, I wish to thank all those involved in this work; from the editors to the proof-readers, and in particular Umm Asmaa and my wife Umm Abdullaah.

May Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) reward us and all of them with al-Firdaws - aameen.

May Allaah humble us all to make this effort pure; seeking His Face alone - certainly to Him is our return.

The Importance of Learning the Arabic Language

Whilst every effort has been made to render this translation from it's original Arabic source to English, one must appreciate the rich nature of the Arabic language and how difficult it can be to accurately capture the true essence of the Arabic text in any language. Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

> Verily, We have sent it down as an Arabic Qur:aan in order that you may understand. ${ }^{1}$

This book and any other book translated from Arabic should never allow the reader to become complacent and hold back from learning the Arabic language, ever! Rather, it should only serve a temporary purpose in assisting the student of knowledge on his way until he has attained his goal in having learnt the Arabic language.

When I began my Arabic language studies at the Islaamic University of

1 The Noble Qur:aan - Soorah Yoosuf, Aayah 2.

Madeenah back in 1993, I remember being interviewed by Dr. V. AbdurRaheem ${ }^{2}$ to assess the level of my Arabic knowledge so as to ascertain exactly which class he should enrol me into; It was then that I sought his advice by asking him the question every Arabic language student ${ }^{3}$ asks - "O Shaykb! What is the best way to learn Arabic?", whereupon he advised: "Arabic is not learnt by simply memorising the grammatical rules, rather, Arabic is learnt through necessity..." - thereby guiding me to restrict my speech to the Arabic language as much as possible despite having just started my studies, wAllaahul-Musta'aan!

Poignantly, I recall a popular story our fellow Pakistani students at the 2 Author of the popular Duroos al-Lughatil-'Arabiyyah li-Ghayr an-Naatiqeen bihaa Madeenah Arabic series of books, and at the time, Supervisor of the Institute of Arabic Language at the University. The Sbaykb is currently the Supervisor of the Translation Department at the King Fahd Qur:aan Printing Complex in Madeenah.

University narrate about Shaykb Ihsaan Ilaahi Zaheer ${ }^{4}$. When the young Shaykh arrived at the University as a student he was allocated a room in Building No. 2 - which back then accommodated 6 students to a room. Upon discovering all his room mates were fellow Pakistanis he promptly made his way to the Dean of Student Accommodation and filed a complaint stressing that he had come to the University to learn the Arabic language and putting him in a room full of his fellow countrymen was detrimental to his efforts. He politely requested that he be placed in a room full of Arabs, whereupon his request was granted! Subhaa-nAllaab! Just listening to his Arabic audio lectures is testament > 4 Born on 31 May 1945. He studied in Jaami'ah Islaamiyyah Guiranwala and Jaami'ah Salafiyyah Faisalabad. He then started teaching and giving weekly khutbabs up until he left for Saudi Arabia. He studied at the Islaamic University of Madeenah and graduated from the Faculty of Sharee'ah. During his final year at the Islaamic University of Madeenah, Shaykh 'Abdul-'Azeez Ibn Baaz asked him to deliver lectures on the Ahmadiyyah - this is a very rare achievement. His book on the subject was then printed in Madeenah, but the young Shaykb wished to include in the book "Graduate of the Islaamic University of Madeenah" - before he had actually graduated! So he asked Shaykb Ibn Baaz, who was the Chancellor at the time and he agreed to it. The young Shaykb then asked Shaykb Ibn Baaz: "What if I fail my degree?" Shaykh Ibn Baaz answered: "I will close the University!" Upon graduating, he returned to Pakistan and pursued further education and received degree classifications of M.A.s in Arabic, Islaamic Studies, Urdu and Farsi.

He was taught by some of the major scholars of our time - namely: Shaykh Abdul Azeez Ibn Baaz, Shaykh Muhammad al-Ameen ash-Shanqeetee, Shaykb 'Abdul-Muhsin al-'Abbaad, Shaykb 'Atiyyah Muhammad Saalim, Shaykb Haafidh Muhammad Ghondalwee, Shaykb Abul-Barakaat Ahmad and Shaykh Muhammad Naasir-ud-Deen al-Albaanee.

He died on 30 March 1987, at the young age of 42; Shaykh 'Abdul-'Azeez Ibn Baaz led his funeral prayer in Riyadh, and the secondary prayer in al-Masjid an-Nabawee in Madeenah was attended by thousands. He was buried in the graveyard of al-Baqee' in Madeenah.
to his mastery of the language.

Imaam ash-Shaaf'ee said5: "The language which Allaah favoured was the Arabic language as he revealed his Noble Book in this (Arabic) and he made this the language of the seal of the prophets Muhammad. And that is why we say that it is befitting for everyone who has the ability to learn Arabic - that they learn it, as it is the best language."

So, just imagine how much you have enjoyed reading a translated book; Now imagine how richer your experience would be if you were to read the original in Arabic!

Regarding the student of knowledge, Shaykb al-Albaanee was asked ${ }^{6}$ : Is it obligatory upon a student of knowledge to learn and communicate in the Arabic language?

And the Shaykb responded: Learning the Arabic language is an obligatory matter, as has been determined by the scholars, that:
"If an obligatory act [A] requires you to undertake a secondary act [B] in order to fulfill the obligatory act [A], then that secondary act [B] becomes obligatory."
[That said], it is not possible for a student of knowledge to understand the Qur.aan and the Sunnab except by means of the Arabic language.

Asfor communicating in Arabic, then it is from the recommended acts, since there is no evidence to suggest its obligation.

[^1]Likewise, Shaykh Ibn 'Uthaymeen was asked': It is apparent that many students of knowledge steer away from perfecting the rules of the Arabic language (grammar); Considering it's importance - what is your point of view?

And the Shaykb responsed: Yes, understanding the Arabic language is important, whether it be the rules of i'raab or the rules of balaaghah, all of these are important. However, based upon us being Arabs, and all Praise is for Allaah, then it is possible to learn without knowing the rules of the Arabic language. However, from that which is complete (and better) is for a person to learn the rules of the Arabic language. So, I encourage the learning of the Arabic language with all it's rules.

Likewise, Shaykhul-Islaam Ibn Taymiyyah (rabima-bullaab) said": "It is known that Arabic is Fard 'alal-Kifaayah and the Salaf would discipline their children for making grammatical mistakes. Due to this, we are ordered, whether it be an obligation or a recommendation, to preserve the Arabic (grammatical) rules, and to correct the tongues that have deviated from the correct speech. By doing so, we preserve the methodology of understanding the Qur.aan and the Sunnab. We also preserve the following of the Arabs in their manner of (correct) speech. If people were left with their grammatical mistakes, this would be considered a great deficiency and despicable mistake."

Shaykb Ibn 'Uthaymeen was also asked': Baara-kAllaahu Feekum, is the fact that the Qur.aan was revealed in the Arabic language a justifica-

[^2]tion or an excuse for non-Arabs (for not acting upon it) due to it not being revealed in their language?

The Shaykh responded: No, non-Arabs do not have an excuse or a justification in that the Qur.aan is not in their language; Rather it is upon them to learn the language of the Qur.aan, because if understanding the Book of Allaab or the Sunnab of the Messenger of Allaah (salAllaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) is dependant upon learning the Arabic language, then learning Arabic becomes waajib. This is because every action that bas to be carried out, in order to be able to perform an obligation, acquires the ruling of being obligatory [or - All actions which if not performed first, an obligatory act cannot be performed, acquire the ruling of being obligatory (even if they are not an obligation within themselves, such as walking to the masiid for Salaatul Jamaa'ab (for men), since one cannot perform jamaa'ab in the masjid unless be walks there, the act of walking in order to get to the masjid becomes waajib upon that individual, and so on...)].

Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

\begin{aligned}
& \text { And I created not the jinn and mankind except } \\
& \text { that they should worship Me (Alone). }{ }^{10}
\end{aligned}
$$

In this aayah, Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) has clearly defined the purpose of our creation - our purpose in this life, and outlined the means which shall assist us upon this path in the Noble Qur.aan and the authentic Sunnab - both of which originate in the Arabic language.

10 The Noble Qur.aan - Soorah adh-Dhaariyaat, Aayab 56.

Considering this simple, yet essential fact, should provide us sufficient incentive to allocate time from our busy lives to learning Arabic which will subsequently open the doors to acquiring greater knowledge of this blessed religion of ours.

And what greater means to seeking knowledge can there be than to humble ourselves and sit at the feet of the inheritors ${ }^{11}$ of the Prophets the Scholars of Ablus-Sunnah - and take directly fom them!

And as we take from them, we do so in order to worship our Lord upon sound knowledge, as Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

Say: "Are those who know equal to those who know not?" ${ }^{12}$

"So be who worships Allaab upon sound knowledge will find great delight and immense pleasure in his worship, as opposed to be who worships Allaah without sound knowledge." ${ }^{13}$ Therefore, as we pursue this noble path, let us recall the words of the Messenger of Allaah (salAllaabu 'alaybi wa sallam) who said in this regard:

Whoever treads a path in search of knowledge,

Allaab will make easy for him the path to Paradise. ${ }^{14}$

..the ultimate reward!

Biography of Shaykb Muhammad ibn Saalih al-'Uthaymeen 1929-2001

1. His Lineage ${ }^{1}$

He is Abu 'Abdullaah Muhammad ibn Saalih ibn Muhammad ibn al-Uthaymeen al-Wuhaybee at-Tameemee.

2. His Place of Birth

He was born in the town of 'Unayzah, in the region of Qaseem, on the 27th day of the blessed month of Ramadbaan in 1347 Hijree.

3. His Early Life

He recited the Noble Qur:aan to his maternal grandfather, Abdur-Rahmaan ibn Sulaymaan Aal Daamigh (rabima-bullaab) and memorised it. Then he directed his attention towards seeking other knowledge and so he learned writing, arithmetic and some other subjects. Shaykb 'Abdur-Rahmaan as-Sa'dee (rahima-bullaab) used to place two of the students of knowledge that studied with him in charge of teaching the young students. The first of them was Shaykb 'Alee as-Saalihee, and the second was Shaykb Muhammad ibn ‘Abdul'Azeez al-Mutawwa' (rabima-bullaab), under whom he (Ibn 'Uthaymeen) studied the abridged version of "al-'Aqeedah al-Waasitiyyab" (of Ibn Taymiyyah), written by Sbaykh 'Abdur-Rahmaan as-Sa'dee, "Minhaaj as-Saalikeen fil-Fiqh"; also by Shaykb 'Abdur-Rahmaan, as well as "al-Aajaromiyyab" and "al-Alfiyyab". He also studied the laws of inheritance and fiqb under Shaykb 'Abdur-Rahmaan ibn 'Alee ibn 'Awdaan.

1 Translated by Abu Maryam Ismaa'eel Alercon.

Under Shaykb 'Abdur-Rahmaan ibn Naasir as-Sa'dee (rahima-bullaab) - who is considered to be his first teacher as he remained with him for a period of time - he studied the sciences of tawheed, tafseer, badeeth, fiqh, usool al-fiqh, faraa.id, mustalah al-badeeth, naboo and sarf.

He also studied under the noble Sbaykh, 'Abdul-'Azeez ibn Baaz, such that he came to be known as his second teacher; with him he began the study of Saheeb al-Bukhaaree, some of the treatises of Shaykh al-Islaam Ibn Taymiyyah, and some books of fiqh.

4. His Precedence in Knowledge and His Work in the Field of Da'wab

In the year 1371 Hijree, he began to teach in the congregational mosque. When the educational institutes opened in Riyadh, he signed up with them in 1372 Hijree and after two years he graduated and was appointed as a teacher at the educational institute (Ma'bad al-'Ilmee) in 'Unayzah. In the meantime he continued his studies affiliated with the College of Sharee'ah, as well as his studies under Sbaykh 'Abdur-Rahmaan asSa'dee (rahima-bullaab).

When Shaykb 'Abdur-Rahmaan as-Sa'dee passed away, he was given the position of Imaam at the main congregational mosque of 'Unayzah, along with the responsibility to teach in the central library of 'Unayzah, in addition to teaching at the educational institute. He later moved on to teaching in the Faculties of Sharee'ab and Usool ad-Deen in the Qa-seem branch of the Imaam Muhammad ibn Su'ood Islaamic University. In addition to this, he was appointed a member of the Council of Senior Scholars of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia.

Shaykb Ibn 'Uthaymeen has played a large and active role in the field of da'wah (calling to Allaah) and teaching the Muslims. Thus the people recognised him from the various beneficial classes and impressive sermons he gave on the day of Jumu'ab in the Central Masjid of 'Unayzah, in Qaseem. They knew him from the lessons he taught in al-Masjid alHaraam during the nights of i'tikaaf in the month of Ramadhaan, every year. He was also known by the firmly composed fataawa he issued to the masses of Muslims from the East and the West; during the joyous occasion of Hajj, or in the journals and magazines, on the radio broadcast "Light upon the Path" (Noor 'alad-Darb), and through the letters he exchanged with many students of knowledge and readers. Furthermore, he was known for the rulings he gave with complete and wholesome responses to the questions that were presented to him everyday.

5. His Books on the Subject of 'Aqeedab

Shaykh Muhammad ibn Saalih al-'Uthaymeen has a vast number of valuable books from which the people gain benefit; on the subjects of 'aqeedah, fiqh and its principles, admonition, advice and da'wah, and a large portion of which are taught by the Ministry of Education of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia.

We will mention here the books that are related to 'aqeedab:

1. Fat.h Rabbil-Barriyyab Bi-Talkhees al-Hamawiyyab: This is his first book that was ever printed. He completed it on the 8th of Dhul-Qi'dab 1380 Hijree. It is printed within a collection of essays on 'aqeedah by Maktabah al-Ma'aarif of Riyadh.
2. Nubadh fil-'Aqeedah al-Islaamiyyah (A Brief Article on the Islaamic Creed): In this book the Shaykb explains the six pillars of Eemaan. It was assigned to the third year of secondary school in the educational institutes, for the subject of tawheed. It was printed in the collection mentioned previously of Maktabah al-Ma'aarif of Riyadh.
3. al-Qawaa'id-ul-Muthlaa fee Sifaatillaab wa Asmaa.ibi al-Husnaa (Ideal Principles Concerning Allaah's Attributes and His Beautiful Names): It is one of the most magnificent works that Shaykb 'Uthaymeen has written. We have provided a checking for it, as well as a commentary on the chains of narration, and it has been printed - all praise is due to Allaah.
4. Sharb Lum'atul-'Itiqaad al-Haadee ilaa Sabeel ar-Rashaad libni Qudaamah (An Explanation of "Sufficiency in Creed" - A Guide to the Straight Path - of Ibn Qudaamah): It is this book which was assigned to the first year of the secondary school level of the educational institutes, for the subject of tawheed.
5. 'Aqeedah Abl-us-Sunnah wal-Jamaa'ab (The Creed of Abl-us-Sunnab wal-Jamaa'ab): He mentions in it a summarised yet comprehensive account of the Creed of Abl-us-Sunnab wal-Jamaa'ah. The Islaamic University of Madeenah printed it.
6. Sharb al-'Aqeedab al-Waasitiyyab libni Taymiyyab (An Explanation of the Book, "al-'Aqeedab al-Waasitiyyab" of Ibn Taymiyyah): It was assigned to the second year of the secondary school level of the educational institutes, for the subject of tawheed. It is printed and in wide circulation.
7. Tafseer Aayatul-Kursee (An Explanation of Aayatul-Kursee): This tafseer consists of a magnificent topic on the Names and Attributes of Allaah, discussed by the Shaykb. It is printed and in wide circulation. In addition to this, there are all the fataawa of the Shaykb regarding Aqeedab which have been printed many times over and included in his books on fataawa, in magazines, and in journals.

6. His Death

The Shaykb (rahima-bullaab) passed away on Wednesday, the 15th of Shawwaal 1421 Hijree (10 January, 2001), when he was 74 years of age. We pray to Allaah that the Muslims benefit from what he has left behind of his knowledge and wisdom, and to grant him due reward and forgiveness for his sins.

Chapter One

Definition of Knowledge, it's Virtues and the Ruling Regarding Seeking it.

Within this chapter there are three parts:

Part OneThe Definition of Knowledge

Part TwoThe Virtues of Knowledge

Part Three

The Ruling Regarding Seeking Knowledge

Part One

Definition of Knowledge

Linguistically - (Knowledge is) the opposite of ignorance, which is: To understand something with definitive understanding.

Technically - Some of the people of knowledge have said: (knowledge) "...is to know (something) and it is the opposite of ignorance," while others from amongst them have said: "Certainly, knowledge is more than to (simply) know."

What we mean here is knowledge of the Sharee'ah, and what is meant by this is: knowledge which Allaah has revealed to His Messenger from the evidences and the guidance. Therefore, knowledge which has praise and commendation attached to it is knowledge of the revelation, that being, only knowledge which Allaah has revealed.

The Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam) said:

Whoever Allaab wishes good for, He grants him un## derstanding of the religion. ${ }^{1}$

The Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam) also said:

> Certainly, the Prophets have not bequeathed deenaar nor dirbam, rather they bave bequeathed knowledge, so whoever takes it has taken abundant good fortune. ${ }^{2}$

From that which is known is that what the Prophets have bequeathed is the knowledge of the Sharee'ah of Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) and nothing other than it. So, the Prophets ('alayhimis-salaam) have not bequeathed for man knowledge of manufacturing and that which is related to it; rather, when the Messenger (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam) arrived in Madeenah he found the people grafting the date palms. Having seen how tired they had become he said to them something along the lines of, there is no need for this, meaning grafting. Upon hearing this they left the process of grafting, and as a result the date palms deteriorated in their yield. The Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) then said to them:

You bave better knowledge (of a technical skill) in the affairs of your world. ${ }^{3}$

Were it that such knowledge was praiseworthy then the Messenger (sal-

[^4]Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) would have been more knowledgeable than the people about it; this is because the one who is most praised and blessed with knowledge and acting upon that knowledge is the Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam).

Therefore knowledge of the Sbaree'ab is that which is praiseworthy, and the one who acts according to it is also praiseworthy.

However, this does not mean that there is no benefit in acquiring other knowledge; rather, at certain times learning it may be obligatory. However there are certain conditions that need to be fulfilled: it must possess a double-edged benefit. If it assists in obedience to Allaah and leads to the success and victory of the Religion of Allaah, and the servants of Allaah are able to benefit from it, then that is good and beneficial knowledge, and learning it may well be obligatory at certain times should it fall under the statement of Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala):

And make ready against them all you can of power, including steeds of war... ${ }^{4}$

It has been mentioned by many from amongst the people of knowledge that seeking knowledge of manufacturing is fard kifaayab, and that is for example, because it is imperative that the people have (utensils and) containers to cook with and drink from, and such similar issues with which they can seek benefit. So if there were none who came forward to establish such a process, then the learning of it becomes fard kifaayab and this is a controversial issue amongst the people of knowledge. However, I wish to reaffirm that the knowledge which is praiseworthy

[^5]and commendable is knowledge of the Sharee'ah, which is understanding the Book of Allaah and the Sunnab of His Messenger (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam), and that which is other than this is either a means to something good or a means to something evil. Therefore its ruling is based upon what that particular knowledge is a means to, either good or evil.

Part Two

The Virtues of (Seeking) Knowledge

Allahh (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) has praised knowledge of the Sharee'ab and the people of knowledge, and has encouraged His servants to seek this knowledge, which includes knowledge of the authenticated Sunnab.

So seeking knowledge is amongst the most superior and virtuous acts as it is one of the most superior and honourable acts of worship. This is because it is a type of jibaad in the Path of Allaah. Certainly, the Religion of Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) has been established upon two principles:

Firstly: Knowledge and Evidence;
Secondly: Combat on the battlefield.
These two principles are imperative in establishing the Religion of Allaah, and it is not possible for the Religion of Allaah to be established and prevail without these two principles collectively.

The first of the two principles takes precedence over the second, and because of this the Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam) never imposed anything upon a nation until he had conveyed to them the Message of Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala); therefore knowledge preceded combat.

Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

Is one who is obedient to Allaab, prostrating himself or standing during the bours of the night, fearing the Hereafter and boping for the Mercy of his Lord? ${ }^{1}$

So the issue here is that there must be one who is other than this; is the one who is standing in obedience during the night and day the same as the one who does not do this?

And, is the one who is obedient to Allaah, standing and prostrating himself in prayer during the night, fearing the Hereafter and seeking the Mercy of his Lord, equal to the one who considers himself far above from obedience to Allaah?

The answer: No! He is not equal! So, the one who is obedient to Allaah, seeking the reward from Allaah and fearing the Hereafter, are his actions based upon knowledge or upon ignorance?

The answer: His actions are based upon knowledge and because of this

1 The Noble Qur.aan - Soorab az-Zumar, Aayab 9.

Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

Are those who know equal to those who know not?" It is only men of understanding who will remember: ${ }^{2}$

There is no comparison between one who has knowledge and one who does not, just as there is no comparison between the living and the dead; the one who hears and the one who is deaf; and the one who can see and the one who is blind. Knowledge is light with which one is guided, and it removes one from the darkness (of ignorance) to the light (of knowledge, i.e. Islaam). With knowledge Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) raises the ranks of whom He wishes from His creation:

Allaab will exalt in degree those of you who believe, and those who bave been granted knowledge. ${ }^{3}$

Because of this, we find the people of knowledge at the centre of praise; whenever mention is made of them, the people praise them. This is their status in this world. As for the Hereafter, then they will be raised to ranks according to that which they stood for in calling to Allaah and acting according to that which they knew.

Certainly, the true worshipper is he who worships his Lord upon sound

2 The Noble Qur:aan - Soorab az-Zumar, Aayah 9.
3 The Noble Quraan - Soorab al-Mujaadalah, Aayab 11.
knowledge, and the truth is made clear to him. This is the path of the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam), just as Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) says:

Say: "This is my way; I invite unto Allaab with sure knowledge, I and whosoever follows me with sure knowledge. And Glorified and Exalted be Allaab.
And I am not of the Mushrikeen."
So one who purifies himself and knows this is based upon something from the Sharee'ah, is he like the one who purifies himself because he saw his father or his mother doing the same?

Which of the two is more versed in carrying out this act of worship? Is it the one who purifies himself because he knows Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) has commanded purification and that this is also the way the Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam) purified himself, so he purifies himself in obedience to Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) and in accordance with the Sunnab of the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam)?

Or is it the one who purifies himself because it is something quite ordinary and common to him?

The answer: Without doubt, the first (of the two) is the one who worships Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) upon sound knowledge.

[^6]So, is he equal to the other? Even though their actions are one and the same, his actions are based upon sound knowledge, seeking the Mercy of Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) and fearing the Hereafter, and he is aware he is following the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam).

I pause at this point and ask: should we be conscious when we are making the ablution, that what we are doing is in obedience to the commandment of Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala)? He (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

0 you who believe! When you intend to offer asSalaab, wash your faces and your hands up to the elbows, rub your heads, and your feet up to ankles. ${ }^{5}$

Should one call to mind this aayab when making ablution, and that he is doing ablution in obedience to the command of Allaah?

Should he be conscious that this is the (manner of making) ablution of the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) and that he is doing the ablution in adherence to the Sunnab of the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam)?

The answer: Yes! In reality, from amongst us there are those who call

this to mind, and because of this, it is obligatory when doing an act of worship that we are doing so in obedience to the command of Allaah thereby actualising sincerity, and that we are adherents of the Sunnab of the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam).

We know that from the conditions of the ablution is the intention.

However, the purpose of the intention could imply the intention of the action itself, (i.e. ablution) and this is what is looked into in Figh; it could also imply the intention of the act (i.e. prayer) for which this action (i.e. ablution) is done.

At this stage, it is upon us to be aware of this great act; when we undertake an act of worship we call to mind that we do so in obedience to the command of Allaah, actualising sincerity, and we also call to mind that the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam) did such an act and that we are adherents of it, thereby actualising adherence.

This is because from the conditions of the perfection of an action is: sincerity (for the Sake of Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala)) and adherence (to the Sunnab of the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam)).

With these two (conditions), one affirms the testimony that there is none truly worthy of worship except Allaah alone, and that Muhammad (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) is the Messenger of Allaah.

We return to what we mentioned at the beginning from the virtues of knowledge; with knowledge one worships his Lord with insight based upon sound proofs, so that one's heart becomes attached to worship thereby becoming illuminated, and he becomes consistent in doing (these) actions, knowing it is worship and not a ritual. Because of this, if he prays accordingly, then he is assured of that which Allaah mentions ${ }^{6}$ - that the prayer protects one from every kind of great sin and evil and wicked deed.

From amongst the important virtues of knowledge is that which follows:

1) That it is a legacy of the Prophets: since the Prophets (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam) did not bequeath deenaar nor dirbam, rather, they bequeathed knowledge, so whoever takes this knowledge, then he has taken abundant good from the legacy of the Prophets (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam). So we are now in the 15th century (of the Hijrab calendar), and if you are from amongst the people of knowledge, then you have received the legacy of Muhammad (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam), and this is from amongst the greatest of virtues;
2) That it remains forever; whilst property is consumed and eventually ceases to exist. So we have (the example of) Abu Hurayrah (radbi-yAllaabu 'anbu) who was from amongst the poorest of the Companions, such that he would become unconscious and collapse from extreme hunger. I ask you in the Name of Allaah, does mention of Abu Hurayrah exist amongst the people in our time or not? Yes, it does exist, and many fold at that! For whoever benefits from his narrations of the Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam) there will be reward for Abu Hurayrah. Thus knowledge is preserved, whilst property is consumed and eventually ceases to exist. So it is upon you, O student of knowledge that you

[^7]hold fast to the knowledge you possess, for it is confirmed in the narration of the Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam) who said:

> When a man dies, his actions come to an end, except for three: recurring charity, or knowledge by which people benefit, or a pious son, who prays for him. ${ }^{7}$
3) That he who has knowledge does not become tired in protecting it. This is because if Allaah bestows knowledge upon you then its place is in the heart, and there is no need for containers or keys or the like. It is protected in the heart and soul, and in time itself. It is a protector for you, because it protects you from danger, with Allaah's (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) Permission. So knowledge protects you, whilst the opposite can be said about property; you protect it by placing it in locked up containers, and despite all this you still remain insecure about it;
4) With it one attains the ranks of the martyrs who are upon the truth; and the evidence is Allaah's (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) saying:

Allaab testifies that Laa-Ilaaba illa Huwa (none bas the right to be truly worshipped but He), and the angels, and those having knowledge; maintaining His creation in Justice. ${ }^{8}$

[^8]So did Allaah say: "Those of wealth?" No! Rather, He said: "Those having knowledge; maintaining His creation in Justice." So, proudly, it is enough for you, O student of knowledge, that you seek to be from amongst those who testify in Allaah; that none has the right to be truly worshipped but He (Laa ilaaha illaa Huwa), and with the angels, who testify to the oneness of Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala);
5) That the people of knowledge are one of a group of those in authority, whom Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) has commanded to be obeyed, as He (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:
 O you who believe! Obey Allaah and obey the Messenger, and those of you who are in authority.?

So here 'those in authority' includes those amongst the rulers and governors, and the scholars and the students of knowledge. So the authority of the people of knowledge is in explaining the Sbaree'ab of Allaah and calling the people to it, whilst the authority of the rulers is in enforcing the Sharee'ah of Allaah and enjoining the people in it;
6) That the people of knowledge are upholders of the commandment of Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) until the Last Hour. Evidence of this is to be found in the narration of Mu'aawiyah (radhi-yAllaabu 'anbu), who said: 'I heard the Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam) say:

> Whoever Allaab wishes good for, He grants him the understanding of the religion, and I am Qaasim and Allaab is the Provider, and this Ummab will # always remain upon the command of Allaab and those who oppose them will be unable to harm them until the arrival of the command of Allaab (the Day of Judgement). ${ }^{10}$

Imaam Ahmad (rabima-hullaah) said about this group: "If they are not the Ablul-Hadeeth, then I do not know who they are".

And al-Qaadhee 'Iyaadh (rahima-bullaah) said: "Imaam Abmad meant the Ablus-Sunnab and those who believe in the way of the AblulHadeeth".
7) That the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) did not encourage anyone to be envious of anyone else over any blessing Allaah may have bestowed upon them except in two things, which are:
i) Seeking knowledge and acting according to it;
ii) The merchant who has rendered his wealth for the service of $I s$ laam.
‘Abdullaah ibn Mas'ood (radhi-yAllaahu 'anhu) said: ‘The Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) said:

Do not be jealous except in two cases. (The first is) A person whom Allaab bas given wealth and be spends it righteously; (The second is) The one whom Allaab has given wisdom (the Qur.aan) and

[^10]be acts according to it and teaches it to others. ${ }^{11}$
8) That which has been mentioned in a badeeth collected by Imaam alBukhaaree on the authority of Abu Moosaa al-Ash'aree (radhi-yAllaahu 'anhu), that the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) said:

The example of guidance and knowledge with which Allaab has sent me is like abundant rain falling on the earth, some of which was fertile soil that absorbed rain water and brought forth vegetation and grass in abundance. Another portion of it was hard and beld the rain water, with which Allaab benefited the people. They utilised it for drinking, watering their animals and for irrigation of the land for cultivation. A portion of it was barren land which could neither bold the water nor bring forth vegetation (so that land gave no benefit). The first is the example of the person who comprehends Allaab's religion, obtains benefit (from the knowledge) that Allaab has revealed through me (the Prophet) and learns and then teaches others. The last example is that of a person who does not care for it and does not take Allaab's guidance revealed through me (be is like that barren land). ${ }^{12}$

[^11]9) That it is a path to Paradise, as indicated in the badeeth of Abu Hurayrah (radhi-yAllaahu 'anbu) that the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu ‘alayhi wa sallam) said:

Whoever treads a path in search of knowledge, Allaab will make easy for him the path to Paradise. ${ }^{13}$

10) That which occurs in the badeeth of Mu'aawiyah (radhi-yAllaahu 'anbu) who said: 'The Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam) said:

Whoever Allaab wishes good for, He grants him understanding of the religion. ${ }^{14}$

i.e. he makes him fully understand the Religion of Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala). And understanding of the religion, according to the people of knowledge, does not just mean understanding of the rulings of specific actions, rather, what is meant is that it is: knowledge of Tawheed and Usool ad-Deen and that which is related to the Sharee'ab of Allaah (Subhaanahu wa Ta'aala). And if there was no evidence from the Qur. aan or the Sunnab except this badeeth relating to the virtues of seeking knowledge, then this would have sufficed in encouraging the seeking of knowledge of the Sharee'ab and the understanding of it;

[^12]11) That knowledge is light with which the servant seeks guidance, such that he knows how to worship his Lord, and how to interact with His servants, so that his path is built upon knowledge and insight based upon sound proofs;
12) That the scholar is light with which people are guided in their religious and worldly affairs. No doubt many people know the story of the man from the tribe of Israa.eel who killed ninety-nine people and then asked about the most knowledgeable person in the land, and he was directed to a pious man. He asked this man if there was any (possibility of) repentance for him. So, the pious man became amazed at the enormity of his actions, and replied, 'No!' So the man killed this pious man and now his count became a complete hundred. Then he approached a scholar and asked him the same question, and was told that there was (a possibility of) repentance for him, and that there was nothing to stand between him and the repentance. He then suggested he travel to such and such a land where the people were upright and virtuous; so he left heading towards it, and he died during the journey. And the story is well known.

So, look at the difference between the scholar and the ignorant!
13) That Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) elevates the status of the people of knowledge in this world and the Hereafter. As for the Hereafter, then Allaah will elevate them to ranks according to that which they stood for with respect to their calling to the Path of Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) and acting according to what they knew. As for this world, then Allaah will elevate them amongst his servants according to what they stood for. Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) says: and those who have been granted knowledge. ${ }^{15}$

Part Three

The Ruling Regarding Seeking Knowledge

Seeking knowledge of the Sharee'ab is fard kifaayah. So if someone performs this act, then his act suffices for the rest, and (its performance) then becomes a preferable act (Sunnab) for the rest. In certain cases it could also be that the seeking of knowledge is fard 'ayn upon some.

Its principle is that when the need to perform an act or to uphold a transaction befalls upon the servant, then it becomes obligatory upon him in this state to know how to engage in the worship of Allaah by this act; and how to uphold this transaction, and any other actions besides these, such as seeking knowledge, are regarded as fard kifaayah.

It is befitting for the student of knowledge to be conscious that he is upholding the collective obligation whilst seeking knowledge such that he gains the reward for performing this obligation as well as gaining knowledge.

There is no doubt that seeking knowledge is amongst the most virtuous acts, moreover, it is from jibaad in the Path of Allaah, especially in this day and age of ours; where innovations have emerged in the Islaamic society and have increased and become widespread; and the emergence of extreme ignorance from those who aspire to issue fataawa without sound knowledge; and the emergence of disputing between many people. So these three issues illustrate the importance upon the youth to seek knowledge:

Firstly, the emergence of innovation and its evil effects;

Secondly, people aspiring to issue fataawa without sound knowledge;

Thirdly, the many disputes taking place in religious matters, such that when a matter is clear for the people of knowledge, you find those who lack sound knowledge coming forward and disputing about it.

So, because of this, we are in need of people of knowledge who are firm, upright and possess an abundance of knowledge and understanding of the Religion of Allaah, and have wisdom in advising the servants of Allaah.

Many people nowadays are acquiring theoretical knowledge in religious matters, whilst no importance is attached to reforming and improving neither the people nor their education. And if they issue fataawa regarding this and that, then this becomes a means to great evil whereby no-one knows its true extent except Allaah (Subhaanahu wa Ta'aala).

Chapter Two

Etiquettes of a Student of Knowledge and the Means Which Assist in Acquiring Knowledge.

Within this chapter there are two parts:

Part OneEtiquettes of a Student of Knowledge

Part Two

Means Which Assist in Acquiring Knowledge

Part One

Etiquettes of a Student of Knowledge

It is imperative for a student of knowledge to have certain etiquettes. Here I shall mention a few:

1. Sincerity of Intention for the Sake of Allaah Alone

Such that one's intention, by seeking knowledge is purely for the Face ${ }^{1}$ of Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala), and success in the Hereafter. This is because Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) has encouraged the seeking of knowledge, since He has said:

So know that Laa ilaaba ill-Allaab (none bas the right to be truly worshipped except Allaab, alone), and ask forgiveness for your sin. ${ }^{2}$

And praise for the scholars in the Qur.aan is well-known. So if Allaah has [^14]praised something or ordered it, then it becomes (an act of) worship.

Therefore, it is obligatory to have sincerity of intention for the Sake of Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) alone; that one intends to seek knowledge for the Face of Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala). And if one were to intend seeking knowledge so that he can attain a certification with which he is able to progress to a higher level, then Abu Hurayrah narrates that the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) said:

> Whoever acquires knowledge of things by which Allaab's good pleasure is sought, but acquires it only to get some worldly advantage, be will not experience the odour of Paradise (i.e. its beautiful fragrance) on the Day of Judgement. ${ }^{3}$

This is extremely threatening!

However, if the student of knowledge were to say: 'I wish to attain certification, not because of some worldly affairs, rather because the system dictates the standard of the scholar by his certification.' So we say, if a person's intention is to attain certification so that he can benefit the people by teaching and the like, then this is a sound and true intention and nothing shall harm him.

[^15]Indeed, we have mentioned sincerity of intention firstly among the etiquettes of a student of knowledge because sincerity is the foundation. So it is upon the student of knowledge to make the intention when seeking knowledge that he is acting in obedience to the command of Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala), because Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) has commanded the seeking of knowledge, as He has said:

So know that Laa ilaaba Illa Allaab (none bas the right to be truly worshipped except Allaab), and ask forgiveness for your sin. ${ }^{4}$

Therefore, He has commanded the seeking of knowledge. So, if you have sought knowledge, then certainly you are obedient to the command of Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala).

2. The Removal of Ignorance from Himself and from Others

To make the intention by seeking knowledge, the removal of ignorance from himself and from others, because the natural state of a person is the state of ignorance, and the evidence for this is the saying of Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala):

And Allaab has brought you out from the wombs of your mothers while you know nothing. And He ## gave you bearing, sight, and hearts that you might give thanks. ${ }^{5}$

And the reality testifies to this, so make the intention by seeking knowledge, the removal of ignorance from yourself and from others, and with that you acquire the fear of Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) as He says:

It is only those who have knowledge among His slaves that fear Allaab. ${ }^{6}$

So make the intention by seeking knowledge, the removal of ignorance from yourself, because your natural state is the state of ignorance. So if you studied and became a scholar, then you have removed ignorance from yourself. Similarly, make the intention by seeking knowledge, the removal of ignorance from the Ummah, and this is done through teaching by various means so that you benefit the people with your knowledge.

Is it a condition that benefiting the people with your knowledge means that you hold a study circle in the masiid? Or is it possible to benefit the people with your knowledge in any gathering?

The answer: You should benefit the people with your knowledge in any gathering. This is because the Messenger (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam) said:

Narrate from me, even if it is a single verse. ${ }^{7}$

This is because, if you teach someone knowledge and he then teaches another, then you have accrued the reward for teaching two; and if he taught a third, then you have accrued the reward for teaching three and similarly this continues. From this, unfortunately at one extreme, an innovation has begun, whereby if one does an act of worship he says: "Oh Allaah! Render its reward to the Messenger of Allaah".

However, since the Messenger (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam) is the one who taught you this, and he is the one who has guided you to this, his reward is automatically equal to yours. ${ }^{8}$

Imaam Ahmad (rahima-bullaah) said: "Nothing is equivalent to seeking knowledge for one whose intention is correct."

It was said: "How is that?"

He said: "That he intends with it the removal of ignorance from bimself and from others."

Because the natural state of a person is the state of ignorance if you sought knowledge for the purpose of removing the ignorance from the Ummab then you are from amongst the mujaabideen in the Path of Allaah; those who propagate the Religion of Allaah.

3. Advocating the Sharee'ab

That he intends by seeking knowledge to advocate the Sharee'ab; since it is not possible for the books to advocate the Sharee'ah, and none can advocate the Sharee'ab except one who knows and understands the Sharee'ah. So, if a man from amongst the people of innovation came to a bookshop filled with countless Islaamic books, and began speaking about the promotion of innovation and enforcing it, I do not suppose that even one of those books could appropriately respond to what he is saying. However, if he was to speak about the promotion of innovation and its enforcement in the presence of one from amongst the people of knowledge, then he will be appropriately refuted with the Qur.aan and the authentic Sunnah.

Therefore, it is upon the student of knowledge that he intends by seeking knowledge to advocate the Sharee'ah, since this is not possible except by those well-versed in the Sharee'ah. Just like weapons; if we had weapons at our disposal that would fill our containers, then would it be possible for these weapons to stand against the enemy and respond to their missiles? Or is this impossible without men?

The answer: This is impossible without men; and such is also the case with knowledge.

Also, innovations are continuously being refashioned, so quite possibly innovations exist which were not present in earlier generations and nor in the books, so it is not possible except for the student of knowledge to refute them, therefore I say:

Certainly, from that which is obligatory for the student of knowledge is adherence to advocating the Sharee'ab. Therefore, it is the people who are in dire need of scholars so that they can respond to the deception of the innovators and all of the enemies of Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala), and this is not possible except with knowledge of the Sharee'ab derived from the Book of Allaah and the Sunnah of His Messenger (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam).

4. Tolerance and Patience in Matters of Differences of Opinion

That his heart is most tolerant and patient in matters of differences of opinion which originate from ijtibaad. Matters of differences of opinion between the scholars are either from that which there is no scope for ijtihaad as the issue is so clear that there is no excuse for anyone to have any difference of opinion; or that there is scope for ijtibaad and this provides an excuse for one who has a difference of opinion. Your opinion does not become proof against one who differs with you, because if we were to accept this, then we would also accept the opposite: that his statement is a proof against you.

As for he who differs in opinion to the way of the Salaf in such matters as 'aqeedah, then this difference of opinion is not accepted from anyone. However, in other matters in which there is scope for opinions, then it is not befitting to undertake a verbal attack against those who differ in opinion nor take this as an opportunity to breed hostility and hate.

The Companions (radhi-yAllaabu 'anhum) used to differ in opinion in many matters. So those who wish to read about their differences of opinion should refer to those traditions which are available regarding them, and you will find many differences of opinion amongst them. And those issues were greater than that which people differ in these days, such that the people of today adopt bizbiyyab by saying: I am with such-and-such and I am with such-and-such, as if the matter is a matter of bizbiyyah. Indeed, this is a grave mistake.

For example, one says when rising from the rukoo' that you do not place your right hand over your left. Rather, you place your hands by either side, and if you do not do so, then you are a mubtadi'.

The term innovator is not easy upon the soul. If someone were to call me an innovator there will develop in my heart some ill feeling, since man is only human. So we say this issue is so open that one may either place them (the right over the left) or let them fall (by either side).

Due to this difference of opinion, Imaam Ahmad stipulated a choice between placing one's right hand over the left and letting them fall by either side, because this issue is quite open. However, what is the Sunnab in this issue?

The answer: The Sunnab is to place the right hand over the left when rising from the rukoo' position, just as you place them when you are in the qiyaam position. The evidence is what Imaam al-Bukhaaree narrated on the authority of Sahl ibn Sa'd who said: The people were ordered to place the right band on the left forearm in the prayer. ${ }^{9}$

Then note, is this what is required in the sujood position? Or is it in the rukoo' position? Or is it in the qu'ood position? No! Rather this is what is required in the qiyaam, and that is similar to the qiyaam before the rukoo' and the qiyaam after the rukoo'.

So it is obligatory that we do not seek from this difference of opinion between the scholars a reason for disunity and dispute. This is because we all want the truth and are all doing that which we have performed ijtihaad for. So, as long as this is the case, then it is not permissible to [^19]take this as a reason for hostility and division between the people of knowledge. This is due to the scholars always differing in opinion, as this was even the case in the time of the Messenger (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam).

Therefore, it is obligatory upon the students of knowledge to be united and not use differences of opinion as a reason for dividing and bringing about disunity and mutual hatred. Rather, it is obligatory that if you differ with your colleague based upon correct evidence which you have and he too differs with you based upon correct evidence which he has, that you both move towards a single path, whereby you increase in love between yourselves.

Because of this, we love and congratulate our youth who now possess a strong inclination towards linking issues with evidences and basing their knowledge upon the Book of Allaah and the Sunnah of His Messenger (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam). We see this is from the good, and that it bodes well by opening the doors of knowledge from the correct methodologies. We do not want them to make this a cause for partisanship or hatred, as Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) said to His Messenger, Muhammad (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam):

Verily, those who divide their religion and break up into sects, you bave no concern in them in the least. ${ }^{10}$

As for those who assemble themselves into parties and band together, then we do not approve of this; because the party of Allaah is one, and we see that differing in understanding does not necessitate causing hatred between the people such that one falls on the wrong side of his brother.

So it is obligatory upon the students of knowledge to uphold brotherhood, even if they differ in opinion in some subsidiary issues. It is upon each one to invite the other with calmness and discussion, which is intended for the Sake of Allaah and attainment of knowledge; and this leads to harmony. The harshness and severity in some people causes this to disappear, such that a matter could lead to disagreement and conflict. This, no doubt causes the enemies of Islaam much happiness; and conflict within the Ummab is from the most severe harm which could befall it, as Allaah (Subhaanahu wa Ta'aala) says:

And obey Allaab and His Messenger, and do not dispute lest you lose courage and your strength depart, and be patient. Surely, Allaab is with those who are patient and persevering. ${ }^{11}$

The Companions used to disagree in matters similar to these, but nonetheless they were all united, with true love and harmony. Quite frankly, I say, if a man was to disagree with you on the basis of some evidence he has, then he is really in agreement with you. This is because both of you are in search of the truth, and therefore your goal is one, and that is arriving at the truth by way of evidence. Therefore, he is not in disagreement with you as long as you acknowledge that he is in disagreement with you on the basis of evidence he has. So where is the disagreement? In this manner the Ummab will remain as one, despite it disagreeing in some matters based upon evidence it has.

As for he who opposes and is stubborn after the truth has been made clear, then no doubt it is obligatory to deal with him according to what he deserves, as a result of his opposition and disagreement; since every situation has its own particular way of being addressed.

5. Action Based upon Knowledge

That the student of knowledge acts upon the knowledge which he possesses in matters of 'aqeedah, 'ibaadah, morals, good manners and dealings with others, because this is the fruit and result of knowledge. And he who possesses knowledge is like he who possesses weapons; it is either for his benefit or destruction. It has been confirmed on the authority of the Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam) that he said:

The Qur.aan is prooffor you or against you. ${ }^{12}$

It is a proof for you if you acted according to it and a witness against you if you did not act according to it. Likewise, acting according to that which has been authenticated on the authority of the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam), should be in the form of acceptance of the narrations and compliance to the subsequent rulings. So, if some information comes to you from Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) and His Messenger (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam), then accept it (wholeheartedly) in full submission, and do not say why nor how, for certainly, this is the path of the disbelievers, as Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

12 Saheeh Muslim - The Book of Ablution, Chapter - The virtues of ablution.

It is not for a believer, man or woman, when Allaab and His Messenger have decreed a matter that they should bave any option in their decision. And whoever disobeys Allaab and His Messenger, be bas indeed strayed in a plain error. ${ }^{13}$

As for the Companions, the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) used to inform them of matters that were sometimes strange and far beyond their comprehension; however, they accepted them and did not say why nor how. This is opposite to what the later generations from this Ummab are upon. We find one from amongst them, if a badeeth from the Messenger (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) is narrated to him, he begins to analyse it, leading him to reject the statement of the Messenger (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) by choice, rather than seek guidance. Thus he separates himself from success, as he rejects that which is narrated on the authority of the Messenger (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam) because he did not accept it (wholeheartedly) in full submission.

In this case, I offer an example which is confirmed on the authority of the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam), that he said:

Our Lord descends every night to the heaven of this world when the last third of the night is still to come and says, "Who will call on Me so that I may # answer him? Who will ask Me so that I may give bim? Who will ask forgiveness of Me so that I may forgive him? ${ }^{? 14}$

This badeeth has been narrated by the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) and it is well-known. None of the Companions raised any objections by saying, 'Oh Messenger of Allaah! How does He descend? And does He leave His Throne or not?' etc.

However, in this day and age we find some people talking like this and saying, 'How is He upon His Throne and descending to the lowest heaven?' And that which is similar to this from the statements which reject this, even though they accept this badeeth and say that certainly Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) has risen above His Throne, and His rising is from that which befits His Majesty, and He descends as He (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) wishes, just so as to overcome their doubts that they are not bewildered with that which the Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam) has informed them of their Lord.

Therefore, it is obligatory upon us to accept what Allaah and His Messenger have informed us concerning the matters of the unseen (wholeheartedly), in full submission, and that we do not reject them in favour of that which is in our minds from our feelings and preconceived notions; because the matters of the unseen are far above this. And examples about this are many, and I do not wish to prolong the issue by mentioning them. However, the position of the believer when presented with a hadeeth like this is acceptance in full submission, by saying Allaah and His Messenger have spoken the Truth, as Allaah informs us in His [^21]statement:

The Messenger believes in what has been sent down to him from His Lord, and the believers. Each one believes in Allaab, His Angels, His Books, and His Messengers. They say, "We make no distinction between one another of His Messengers" - and they say, "We hear, and we obey. Your Forgiveness, our Lord, and to You is the return."15

Therefore with respect to 'aqeedah, it is obligatory that it is based upon the Book of Allaah and the Sunnab of His Messenger and that the person is aware that there is no scope for the (Islaamically) un-educated mind in it. I am not saying that there is no scope for the (Islaamically) educated mind in it, rather, what I am saying is there is no scope for the (Islaamically) un-educated mind in it, except that which has been mentioned in the texts with reference to the completeness of Allaah. Even if the mind does not fully comprehend what is obligatory in respect to the completeness of Allaah, it comprehends that all the attributes of completeness have been affirmed for Allaah, and it is imperative that one acts according to the knowledge of that which Allaah has bestowed about Himself with respect to 'aqeedah.

15 The Noble Qur:aan - Soorab al-Baqarah, Aayab 285.

Also, with respect to 'ibaadah, then it is only for Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala), and as is known to many of us, it is based upon two fundamental principles:

Firstly: Sincerity of intention for the Sake of Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) alone.

Secondly: Adhering to the Sunnab of the Messenger (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam).

So it is befitting that one should worship upon that which is revealed from Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) and (authenticated) from His Messenger (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam). One must not innovate in the Religion of Allaah that which is not from it; this includes that which is the basis of worship and its manner. Therefore, we say it is imperative that the worship is affirmed in the Sharee'ab in all of the following categories with respect to its manner, place, time, and reason/cause.

So, if someone affirmed something as a cause for worship, and worshipped Allaah accordingly without evidence from the Qur:aan and Sunnah, we reject this from him and say this is unacceptable because it is imperative he affirms this to be a cause for worship based upon evidence, otherwise it is not accepted from him. Also, if one legislated a form of worship which does not occur in the Sharee'ah, or he came with something which has been mentioned in the Sharee'ab, however its manner has been innovated, or its time has been innovated, we say, certainly this is rejected. This is because it is imperative that worship is based upon that which is mentioned in the Sharee'ah, since this is what Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) has taught us from the knowledge He has revealed to us, that you do not worship Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) except according to that which has been legislated by Him and His Messenger (sal-Allaahu ‘alaybi wa sallam).

Because of this, the scholars have said the basis for all forms of worship is prohibition until evidence has been established as to it being legislated, and they have based this upon the following statement of Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala):

Or have they partners with Allaab, who have instituted for them a religion which Allaab has not allowed. ${ }^{16}$

And the saying of the Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam) in that which has been confirmed on his authority from the badeeth of 'Aa.ishah (radbi-yAllaahu 'anhaa):

Anyone who does an act which is not in agreement with us (i.e. Allaab and His Messenger), then be will have it rejected. ${ }^{17}$

Even if you were sincere and wanted to seek the Pleasure of Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) and wanted to attain His Honour, if this were not done according to that which has been legislated, then this would be rejected from you. Even if you wanted to seek the Pleasure of Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) in a manner which has not been determined by Allaah as a means to seeking His Pleasure, then this is also rejected from you.

16 The Noble Qur.aan - Soorab ash-Shooraa, Aayab 21.
17 Saheeh Muslim - The Book of Judgements.

Therefore, it is obligatory upon the student of knowledge to worship Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) according to that which he knows from the Sharee'ab and not to exceed in this and nor fall short of it. One should not say that this matter in which I wish to worship Allaah is a matter which dwells inside of me, and my heart is at ease and pleased with it. He should not say this in case he attains it, and so it is weighed on the scales of the Sharee'ab, and all bodes well if the Book of Allaah and the Sunnab are witness to it in terms of acceptance; otherwise his evil act may appear appealing to him (and thus lead him astray) as Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

> Is he, then, to whom the evil of his deeds is made fairseeming, so that be considers it as good? Verily, Allaab sends astray whom He wills, and guides whom He wills. ${ }^{18}$

It is also imperative he acts according to his knowledge in matters of good behaviour and dealings with others. Knowledge of the Sharee'ab calls to all virtuous people in matters of truth, faithfulness and love in all that is good for the believers, such that the Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam) said:

None of you truly believes until be loves for his brother what he loves for himself. ${ }^{19}$

[^22]And the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) said:

> Whoever wishes to be delivered from the Fire and enter the Paradise should die with faith in Allaab and the Last Day and should treat the people as be wishes to be treated by them. ${ }^{20}$

Many people have a sense of honour and love for the good; however, they do not practice it. For example, we find they are harsh and severe even in the field of da'wah to Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala), and this behaviour is opposite to that which Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) has commanded us with.

And know that good behaviour is that by which one gains nearness to Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala), and the best of the people, and the closest to the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam) are those whose degree of good manners are superior, as he (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam) said:

Indeed, the most beloved of you to me and the closest to me on the Day of Judgement are those with the best of manners, and the most detestable to me and furthest away from me on the Day of Judgement are the tharthaaroon (gossip-mongers) and the mutashaddiqoon (ranters and ravers) and the [^23]His companions said: "O Messenger of Allaah! We know of the tharthaaroon and the mutashaddiqoon, so who are the mutafayhiqoon?" He said:

The proud ones.

6. The Call to Allaah

That he calls to Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) based upon his knowledge, and calls using every possible opportunity: in the masaajid, gatherings, in the market places and at all such opportunities. After Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) had favoured the Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam) with Prophethood and Messengership, he did not sit in his house, rather he used to go out and invite the people to Allaah. Therefore, I do not wish to see the students of knowledge taking to writing books, rather I wish to see them as working students of knowledge, using every opportunity to call to Allaah.

7. Wisdom

That he is distinguished with wisdom, as Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

[^24]
He grants Hikmab (wisdom) to whom He pleases, and be, to whom Hikmab is granted, is indeed granted abundant good. ${ }^{22}$

Wisdom is that the student of knowledge becomes a teacher of others with what he possesses of good manners and invites to the Religion of Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala), such that he addresses everyone according to that which befits their level of understanding. And if we were to pursue this path we would acquire much good, as our Lord (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

And be, to whom Hikmab is granted, is indeed granted abundant good. ${ }^{23}$

And the bakeem is he who adapts matters to their appropriate level; because the word bakeem comes from the word ibkaam, and that is agreement and mastery of a thing whereby he adapts a matter in such a way as to bring it to its required level. It is therefore befitting, moreover, obligatory upon the student of knowledge to be wise in his da'wab.

Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) has mentioned the principles of da'wab in His (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) saying:

Invite to the Way of your Lord with wisdom and

22 The Noble Qur.aan - Soorah al-Baqarah, Aayab 269.
23 The Noble Qur.aan - Soorab al-Baqarah, Aayah 269.

fair preaching, and argue with them in a way that is better. ${ }^{24}$

And Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) has mentioned a fourth principle with regards to debating with the People of the Book, by saying:

And argue not with the people of the Scripture, unless it be in that which is better, except with such of them as do wrong. ${ }^{25}$

So the student of knowledge should select from the techniques of giving da'wab that which is the closest to acceptance. An example of this is the da'wab of the Messenger (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam); when a Bedouin Arab came and urinated in a part of the masiid. The Companions stood to rebuke him, but the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) forbade them from doing so. When the Bedouin Arab had finished urinating, the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) called him over and said:

> These masaajid are not the places meant for urine and filth; rather, they are only for the remembrance of Allaab, prayer and the recitation of the Qur.aan. ${ }^{26}$

[^25]Or the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) said that which was similar to this.

Have you seen better wisdom than this?

So this Bedouin Arab became so delighted and content that he said: " $O$ Allaab! Have mercy upon me and Muhammad, and do not be Merciful to anyone else."

In another story, that of Mu'aawiyah ibn al-Hakam as-Sulamee, who said:

Whilst we were praying with the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam), one of the men sneezed. So I said: "May Allaab bave mercy upon you!" So the people all looked at me intensely with piercing eyes. So I said: "What's the matter with you all, looking at me like that?" Then they began beating their thighs with their hands. When I saw them attempting to silence me, I became quiet. When the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) had finished praying - may Allaab sacrifice my father and my mother for his sake! I have not seen a teacher since better than bim. By Allaab! He did not alienate me nor strike me nor insult me, rather he (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) said:

> Certainly nothing of the speech of the people is permitted in this prayer, rather, that which is permitted is the glorification and proclamation of the Greatness of Allaab and the reciting of the Qur. aan. ${ }^{27}$

[^26]And from this, we find it is obligatory to undertake the da'wab to Allaah with wisdom as Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) has commanded.

And yet another example is when the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) saw a man and on his hand he had a gold ring, and the gold ring is haraam (prohibited) for the men. So the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) took it off his hand and threw it away, then said:

One of you is wishing for live coal from Hell, and putting it on bis band. ${ }^{28}$

So when the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) left, it was said to the man: "Take your gold ring and derive benefit from it" (i.e. sell it). So he said: "No! By Allaah, I will not take it when Allaab's Messenger (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam) has thrown it away."

So the manner of advising here is more severe, since every situation has its own particular way of being addressed. Similarly, it is befitting for everyone who invites to the Path of Allaah to adapt accordingly to the level of the one he is calling and not to consider all the people on one or the same level; since the desired result is to achieve benefit for all concerned.

If we carefully consider that which many of the du'aat are upon today, we find some of them are overcome by enthusiasm and as a result cause offence, such that the people have an aversion to their call.

If they find someone doing something which is haraam, they make a very big thing of it and forcefully say: "Don't you fear Allaah?" or something similar to this, such that the person has an aversion to them, and this is not good because this is dealing with the issue in the manner which is completely opposite to that which is correct.

When Shaykh al-Islaam ibn Taymiyyah was transmitting on the authority of Imaam ash-Shaafi'ee about that which he saw from the Ablul-Kalaam, he said: "My ruling as regards the Ablul-Kalaam is to beat them with branches (stripped of their leaves) and shoes, and to parade them around the tribes and to say this is the reward of those who leave the Book and the Sunnah, and accept kalaam."

Shaykh al-Islaam ibn Taymiyyah said: "If a person looks at these people he finds them from one angle, most worthy of that which Imaam ashShaafi'ee bas said; bowever, if he looks at them from the point of qadar and freedom of will, then they are overcome by this (that which has been written for them), and the Shaytaan possesses them; thereby the person sympathises and shows compassion towards them. He asks Allaab to protect him from that which they bave been afflicted with, since they bave been given intelligence and bave not been given uprightness, or they bave been given understanding and bave not been given knowledge, or they bave been given bearing, sight and hearts; so of no benefit bave their hearing, sight or bearts been to them."

Like this dear brothers, it is befitting that we look at the sinful people from two viewpoints: the point of Sharee'ab and the point of qadar.

As for from the point of Sharee'ah, then we are not taken to account for blaming the blameworthy, as Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) says with regard to the adulterer and the adulteress:
...flog each of them with a bundred stripes. Let not pity withbold you in their case, in a punisbment prescribed by Allaab. ${ }^{29}$

And then we look at them from the point of qadar. So we show sympathy and compassion towards them and deal with them according to that which is closest to achieving that which is required and alleviating that which is disliked.

And this is from the traits of a student of knowledge as opposed to one who has no knowledge and is ignorant and over-enthusiastic. So it is obligatory for the student of knowledge who calls to the Path of Allaah to use wisdom.

8. The Student of Knowledge is Patient in Seeking Knowledge

That he is patient and persevering in seeking knowledge, and that he does not cease and nor does he become bored, rather he is consistent in seeking knowledge according to his ability.

He should be patient in seeking knowledge and not become bored, for certainly, when boredom strikes a person, it persists to such an extent that he becomes tired and weary, and then ultimately ceases this noble act.

However, if he is patient and persevering in seeking knowledge, then from one angle he will certainly attain the reward of the patient ones, 29 The Noble Qur.aan - Soorab an-Noor, Aayah 2.

while from another angle it will be an achievement for him. Pay attention to the saying of Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) addressing His Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam):

This is of the news of the unseen which We reveal unto you, neither you nor your people knew them before this. So be patient. Surely, the end is for the Muttaqoon (pious). ${ }^{30}$

9. Respecting the Scholars and their Positions

It is upon the students of knowledge to respect and appreciate the scholars and to accommodate in their hearts any differences of opinion which may occur between them and other than them. And to deal with this by giving an excuse to one who pursues the wrong path based upon what he believes. This is a very important point, because some people follow the mistakes of others, taking from that which is not befitting of their rights, thereby confusing the people regarding the scholars' standing. And this ranks amongst the greatest of mistakes; if backbiting of the layman ranks amongst the major sins, then backbiting of the scholar is much greater. This is because the effect of backbiting of the scholar does not rest at him only; rather it rests upon him and that which he possesses in knowledge of the Sharee'ah.

If the people renounce a scholar; or if he has fallen in their eyes, then the same will be the case with regard to his words. If he speaks the truth and guides to it, then the backbiting of this scholar becomes an obstacle between the people and his knowledge of the Sbaree'ah. And its dangers are great and considerable.

Certainly, I say it is upon the youth to accept that which passes between the scholars from differences of opinion with good intention, and upon ijtibaad and to offer excuses in that which they err in.

And there is no harm in speaking to them about that which you consider they have erred in, so as to clarify whether this error is directly from them or from those who say they have erred. This is because a person sometimes assumes that the statement of the scholar is a mistake, then, after discussing it the truth is made clear to him. And man is only human, as the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) has said:

All of the children of Aadam make mistakes, and ## the best of them are those who repent. ${ }^{31}$

As for taking delight in the lapse of the scholar and his mistake so as to [^27]circulate this amongst the people to cause division, then this is certainly not from the way of the Salaf.

This is also the case with the errors of the leaders; it is impermissible for us to take that which they err in as an opening to speak evil of them in everything and to overlook their good deeds, as Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) says in His Book:

0 you who believe! Stand out firmly for Allaab and be just witnesses and let not the enmity and hatred of others make you avoid justice. ${ }^{32}$

In other words, you cannot bear the aversion of a people over and above their lack of honesty. Therefore honesty is obligatory, and it is not permissible for a person to take the mistakes of any one of the leaders or the scholars or others besides them and then circulate them amongst the people, whilst remaining silent about their good deeds. Certainly, this is not honesty!

Consider yourself: just imagine for a moment that someone in authority over you went about spreading your mistakes and bad deeds and screening your good deeds. Certainly, you would regard this as a serious crime against you. So, if you can see this regarding yourself then it is obligatory upon you to see the same for others besides yourself. Just as I have mentioned previously, the cure to that which you suspect to be a mistake is to telephone the one whom you suspect has made the mistake and discuss the issue with him, then consider your position after the discussion.

So how many people, after the discussion has taken place revert from their opinions to that which is the correct one? And how many people, after the discussion has taken place have found their opinion to be the correct one, whilst we suspected him to be in error?

The Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) said:

A faithful believer to a faithful believer is like the bricks of a wall, enforcing each other. ${ }^{33}$

While saying that the Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam) clasped his hands by interlacing his fingers.

And the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) also said:

> Whoever wishes to be delivered from the Fire and enter the Paradise should die with faith in Allaab and the Last Day and should treat the people as be wishes to be treated by them. ${ }^{34}$

And this is what is regarded as honesty and uprightness.

10. Holding Steadfast to the Qur.aan and the Sunnab

It is obligatory upon the students of knowledge to adhere strictly to seeking knowledge from authentic sources; without which there is no success. And these are:

1. The Noble Qur.aan: It is obligatory upon the student of knowledge to adhere strictly to reading, memorising, understanding and acting according to it. Certainly, the Qur.aan is the strong and firm rope of Allaah and it forms the basis for all Islaamic knowledge. The Salaf used to adhere strictly to it, making this their goal.

In mentioning something astonishing about their strict adherence to the Qur.aan, you would find one of them had memorised the Qur.aan by the age of seven years, whilst others had memorised the Qur.aan in less than a month. In this there is a clear sign regarding the strict adherence to the Qur.aan by the Salaf (radhi-yAllaabu 'anbum). It is therefore obligatory upon the student of knowledge to adhere strictly to it and memorise it under the guardianship of one of its teachers, because the Qur.aan is memorised through being instructed by a qualified teacher.

It is regretful that one finds some of the students of knowledge do not memorise the Qur.aan, nor do they seek proficiency in its reading, and this is a great shortcoming in their approach. Because of this, I reiterate that it is obligatory upon the students of knowledge to adhere strictly to memorising the Qur.aan and act according to it and invite to it and understand it according to the understanding of as-Salaf as-Saalib.
2. The Authentic Sunnah: This is the second of the two sources of the Sharee'ah, and it is the expounder of the Noble Qur.aan. So, it is obligatory upon the student of knowledge to combine the two and strictly adhere to them both. And it is also upon the student of knowledge to memorise the Sunnah, either by memorising the nusoos of the abaadeeth or by studying the asaaneed and its mutoon, and differentiating the sabeeb from the da'eef. Likewise, memorising the Sunnab is done by protecting it and refuting the doubts of the innovators of the Sunnab.

So it is obligatory upon the student of knowledge to adhere strictly to the Qur.aan and the authentic Sunnah, because they are for him like two wings of a bird: if one of them becomes damaged then it is unable to fly.

Because of this, do not adhere to the Sunnab and be neglectful of the Qur.aan, nor adhere to the Qur.aan and be neglectful of the Sunnab; because many of the students of knowledge devote their total attention to the Sunnab and its exegeses and knowledge of its narrators and its technical terms. However, if you were to ask him about a verse from the Book of Allaah you will find him to be completely ignorant of it, and this is a great mistake. Therefore it is imperative for the Qur.aan and the Sunnab to be two wings for you O student of knowledge.

Here I would like to mention a third and very important matter, and that is the statements of the scholars. Do not overlook and be neglectful of the statements of the scholars, because the scholars are more firm and steadfast than you in knowledge, since they possess knowledge of the rules of the Sharee'ab and its principles; quite simply, that which you do not possess.

It is therefore obligatory upon the student of knowledge to resort to the Book of Allaah and the Sunnab of His Messenger (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam) and make use of the statements of the scholars.

Resorting to the Book of Allaah is done by memorising it and reflecting over it and acting according to it, because Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

A Book which We have sent down to you, full of blessings that they may ponder over its verses, and that men of understanding may remember. ${ }^{35}$

That they may ponder over its verses.

So reflecting upon the verses will lead to an understanding of their meanings.

And that men of understanding may remember.

And remembrance is acting in accordance to the Qur.aan.

This is the wisdom with which the Qur.aan has been revealed. Since this is the case, then let us turn to it to reflect over and understand its meanings, implementing that which it mentions, for certainly by Allaah, there is the welfare of this world and the Hereafter in it, as Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

35 The Noble Qur.aan - Soorah Saad, Aayah 29.

> Then whoever follows My Guidance shall neither go astray, nor fall into distress and misery. But whosoever turns away from My Reminder verily, for him is a life of bardship, and We shall raise bim up blind on the Day of Resurrection. ${ }^{36}$

Because of this, you will never find anyone more blessed with clear thought, peace and tranquillity in his heart than the believer; even if he is poor and destitute. Therefore, amongst the people the believer is the one who is most full of happiness, and most peaceful and tranquil, and the most blessed with clear thought. So read the statement of Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala):

Whoever works righteousness, whether male or female, while be is a true believer verily, to bim We will give a good life, and We shall pay them certainly a reward in proportion to the best of what they used to do. ${ }^{37}$

What is the good life?

The answer: The good life is the inner delight and peace of heart, such that if one was in the worst of affairs, he would still be cheerful and at 36 The Noble Qur.aan - Soorab Taa-Haa, Aayabs 123-124.

37 The Noble Qur.aan - Soorab an-Nahl, Aayab 97.
peace in his heart. The Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) said:

> Strange are the ways of a believer for there is good in every affair of his and this is not the case with anyone else except in the case of a believer; for if be has an occasion to feel delight, be thanks (Allaab), thus there is good for him in it, and if be gets into trouble and sbows resignation (and endures it patiently), there is good for him in it. ${ }^{38}$

If the kaafir was afflicted with adversity, would you find him to be patient?

The answer: No! Rather, he would be sad and find the world around him has tightened. Quite possibly he may revert to committing suicide, whilst on the other hand the believer is patient and finds the sweet taste of patience and is cheerful and tranquil. As a result, his life discovers good, and with that, he benefits as Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

Verily, to him We will give a good life. ${ }^{39}$

That is, the good life is in having a contented heart and soul.

Some of the historians have spoken about the life of al-Haafiz Ibn Hajar (rahima-bullaah). He was a judge from amongst the judges of Egypt in [^29]his time, and he would go to his place of work riding in a carriage being pulled by horses or mules in a caravan. So one day, he passed by a Jewish man who sold oil; and from the traits of one who sells oil is that his clothing would often be dirty, so the Jewish man approached the caravan and halted it. And he said to al-Haafiz Ibn Hajar (rabima-bullaab), "Verily your Prophet used to say:

The world is a prison for a believer and a paradise for a non-believer. ${ }^{40}$

You are a judge from amongst the judges of Egypt, and you are in this caravan, in this ease and comfort, whilst I am in this affliction and suffering!"' al-Haafiz Ibn Hajar (rahima-bullaah) said to him: "I am in that which I am, of ease and comfort, in comparison to the ease and comfort of Paradise, a prison. And as for you, with respect to the suffering which you are in, according to the Fire of Hell, is Paradise."

The Jewish man then said: "I testify, there is none truly worthy of worship except Allaah, and I testify that Mubammad is the Messenger of Allaah." And thus he accepted Islaam.

So a believer is in good fortune in whichever situation he finds himself in, and he is the one who gains from this world and the Hereafter.

And the kaafir is in misfortune and is a loser in this world and the Hereafter.

40 Saheeh Muslim - The Book of Abstention.

Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

By al-Asr (the time). Verily! Man is in loss, Except those who believe and do righteous good deeds, and recommend one another to the truth, and recommend one another to patience. ${ }^{41}$

Therefore, the kaafir and those having neglected the Religion of Allaah and sought ease in their pleasure and comfort, will discover that even if they built palaces and their worldly life prospered, certainly in reality they are in hell. In response, some of the Salaf used to say: "If the kings and the kings' children knew that which we were in, they would quarrel with us over it with swords."

As for the believers, then they are taking pleasure in the intimate discourse of Allaah and His remembrance, and are under the decree of Allaah and His predestination. If they are subjected to any harm, they are patient, and if they are subjected to any pleasure, they are thankful, and they are amongst the most blessed in that which is possible. This is quite opposite to the pleasure seekers of this world, for verily they are as described by Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala):

If they are given part thereof, they are pleased,

but if they are not given thereof, behold! They are enraged! ${ }^{42}$

As for resorting to the Sunnah of the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam), then the Sunnab of the Messenger (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam) is established and preserved before us, and all praise is for Allaah, even that which is fabricated concerning the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam). Certainly, the people of knowledge have explained his Sunnah, and have explained that which has been fabricated concerning him, such that the Sunnab is clear and preserved, and all praise is for Allaah. Further, one is able to gain access to it either by referring to the books, if that is possible, or else by questioning the people of knowledge.

However, if a person says: "How do you reconcile between what you have said with regards to resorting to the Book of Allaah and the Sunnab of His Messenger (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam), taking into account that we find the people are adhering to the books compiled by the differing madhaabib and they say: 'I belong to such and such a madbhab,' 'And me, I belong to such and such a madhhab,' 'Asfor me, well I belong to such and such a madhbab?' Such that you pass a religious verdict for the man and say to him: 'The Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) said such and such,' he will say: 'I am a Hanafee,' or, 'I am a Maalikee,' or, 'I am a Shaafi'ee,' or, 'I am a Hanbalee,' or the like?!"

The answer: That we say to them, we all say:

42 The Noble Qur:aan - Soorab at-Tawbah, Aayab 58.

I testify, there is none truly worthy of worship except Allaab alone, and I testify that Mubammad is the Messenger of Allaab.

Then, what is the meaning of the testification that Muhammad is the Messenger of Allaah?

The scholars have said its meaning is: Adhering to that which he has commanded, and attesting to that which he has informed about, and avoiding that which he has prohibited and deterred from, and not to worship Allaah except according to what has been legislated.

So if one was to say: "I adbere to such and such a madbhab," or, "I am with such and such a madbhab," then we say to him: "This is the saying of the Messenger (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam), so do not contradict it with the saying of anyone else!"

Even the scholars of the madbhabs have prohibited their pure and sheer blind following, and they have said ${ }^{43}$ : "Whenever the truth is made clear, then it is obligatory to resort to it."

So we say to the one who is objecting concerning the madhbab of such and such: "We both testify that Mubammad is the Messenger of Allaah, 43 Translator's Note: I refer the reader to Appendix I, quoting from the book "The Prophet's Prayer Described" by the Noble Scholar and Mubaddith, Shaykh Muhammad Naasirudden al-Albaanee (rahima-bullaah) on this subject.

and this testification requires that we do not follow anyone except the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam). This is the Sunnab before us, plain and clear."

However, by this statement I do not mean that we should belittle the importance of referring to the books of the jurists and the people of knowledge. Rather, one should refer to their books to seek benefit and understanding of the methods they applied in deriving the rulings from their evidences; since this is not possible for the student of knowledge to achieve except by referring to them.

Because of this, we find those people who do not study with the scholars have a serious number of errors. This is because they begin contemplating to a lesser degree than that which is befitting to contemplate with, such that they take Sabeeb al-Bukhaaree for example, and begin looking up abaadeeth. We know amongst the abaadeeth there are those which are ' $a a m$ and those which are mukbassas, whilst there are those which are mutlaq and those which are muqayyad, and those which are mansookb; however they have as yet to be guided to all this. Therefore, without this knowledge they begin to stray in a very serious manner.

11. Verification and Firmness

From amongst the most important disciplines which are obligatory for the student of knowledge to possess is verification; verification in transmitting news and verification in passing judgement. So, if information is transmitted, then it is imperative to verify its authenticity from the one whom it is being transmitted. If it is authenticated, and a religious verdict is issued, then quite possibly the information you have heard may be based upon a principle which you are unaware of, leading you to pass judgement that the religious verdict is a mistake; whilst in reality it is not a mistake!

So what is the remedy for such a situation?

The remedy is that you must call the one to whom this news is attributed and say to him, "Such and such bas been transmitted on your authority, is this correct?" Then, discuss the issue with him. It could be that your disagreement and subsequent alienation of him was due to what you heard, which was alarming because you do not know the reason for that which has been transmitted.

It is said: "If the reason is known, then there is no alarm." So, it is imperative to firstly verify the information and religious verdict, thereafter, call the one from whom it is being transmitted and ask him: "Has this been authenticated or not?" Then discuss it with him; either it will be that he is upon the truth and that which is correct, so you turn to it, or that which you are upon is the truth, so he will turn to it, inshaa.-Allaah.

There is a difference between thabaat and tathabbut, and they are two words which are linguistically similar, yet differ in meaning.

As for thabaat, then it implies patience and perseverance and not to become tired nor bored and not to take a little from each and every book, nor take a little from each and every subject then leave it, as this harms the student of knowledge by wasting away days without benefit.

For example, some students study the subject of naboo; sometimes they refer to the text of الآجْرُوْمِمَّةُ . This is also the case with mustalah al-hadeeth; sometimes

Such is the case with all the various topics and their books. Generally, this does not assist in seeking knowledge, and even if it does, then all that has been covered are (secondary) issues and not the principles. Acquiring the (secondary) issues is similar to the one who catches a locust - one after the other; however, that which is important to possess is the qualities of ta.seel, rusookb and thabaat.

So have thabaat with regard to the books which you read or refer to, and also thabaat with regard to the scholars from whom you seek knowledge. Do not be like the one who goes to a different scholar every week, nor one who goes to another scholar every month; but instead, decide from which scholar you wish to seek knowledge, then, when you have decided, make firm your decision. Do not be undecided and go to different scholars every week or every month. There is no harm in you taking a scholar for fiqh and continuing with him in this; another scholar in nahoo and continuing with him in this; and yet another scholar in 'aqeedab and tawheed and continuing with him in this. The important thing is to continue and persevere, and not be undecided and drift from one scholar to another. This is like the man who is a persistent divorcer; whenever he marries a woman, he spends some days with her then divorces her and then goes and finds another!

Also, tathabbut is an important matter because the transmitters sometimes have evil intentions. They deliberately transmit that which aims to discredit the transmission; sometimes they do not have evil intentions, but nevertheless, they understand a matter contrary to that which was intended. Because of this, it is obligatory to seek tathabbut. So if the chain of narration serves to verify that which is transmitted, you arrive at a level of discussion with the one from whom it is being transmitted before you pass judgement on the statement that it is a mistake or not. This is because it may quite possibly become clear to you after the discussion that the truth is really with the one from whom the statement is transmitted.

In conclusion, if a statement is transmitted on the authority of such-andsuch, and you feel it is wrong, then adhere to the following three steps, in order:

Firstly: Verify the authenticity of the narration;

Secondly: Look into the issue to ascertain the correct ruling; if it is correct, then support and uphold the position of the one from whom the narration is transmitted. However, if you find it is wrong, then proceed to step three;

Thirdly: Telephone the one from whom the narration is transmitted and discuss the issue with him calmly and respectfully.

12. Taking Care to Understand the Qur.aan and the Sunnab

From among the matters which are important in seeking knowledge is the issue of understanding, i.e. understanding that which was intended by Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) and His Messenger (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam).

This is because many people have knowledge, but they do not have the understanding. It is not enough just to memorise the Book of Allaah and that which is easy from the Sunnah of the Messenger of Allaah (salAllaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) without understanding them. It is imperative to understand that which was intended by Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) and His Messenger (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam). What greater failing is there than those who draw conclusions using evidences from the Book of Allaah and the Sunnah of His Messenger (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam), contrary to what was intended by Allaah (Sub-baanahu wa Ta'aala) and His Messenger (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam), thereby leading them to deviation?

Here, I wish to make a very important point, and that is:

A mistake through lack of understanding can often be more dangerous than a mistake through ignorance.

This is because the ignorant is he who makes mistakes based upon his ignorance and knows he is ignorant, but nonetheless is learning.

Whilst he who misunderstands believes himself to be most learned and correct; believing such-and-such is what Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) and His Messenger (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) have intended. We offer a few examples here to clarify the importance of understanding:

Example One:

Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) says:

Sulaymaan to understand, and to each of them We gave Hikmab and knowledge. And We subjected the mountains and the birds to glorify Our Praises along with Daawood. And it was We Who were the doers. ${ }^{44}$

Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) has, from the aspect of understanding, preferred Sulaymaan ('alayhis-salaam) over Daawood ('alayhis-salaam) in this particular case, as Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) says:

And We made Sulaymaan to understand. ${ }^{45}$

However, there is no deficiency in the knowledge of Daawood ('alayhissalaam), as Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:
> ǵc
> And to each of them We gave Hikmab and knowledge. ${ }^{46}$

Look at this aayah where Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) has distinguished Sulaymaan ('alaybis-salaam) with understanding and He (Subhaanahu wa Ta'aala) has also distinguished Daawood ('alaybissalaam), as He (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

And We subjected the mountains and the birds to glorify Our Praises along with Daawood. ${ }^{47}$

That is so both of them can be equal. So Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) has mentioned that which both of them shared in wisdom and knowledge, and then He (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) mentioned that which each is distinguished with over the other.

This demonstrates for us the importance of understanding, and that knowledge is not everything.

Example Two:

Supposing you had two containers, one in which there was hot water and the other in which there was very cold water. It was winter time, and you wanted to take a ghusl due to the janaabah. Some people would say it is preferable to use the cold water because there is much hardship in it; since the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) said:

Should I not suggest to you that by which Allaab obliterates the sins and elevates the ranks (of man)? ${ }^{48}$

They said: "Yes, Messenger of Allaah." He said:

Performing the ablution thoroughly despite the odds.

[^31]What this means is to perform the wudoo properly in the cold days. So, if you performed wudoo with cold water, it is superior to performing wudoo with warm water which is naturally more appropriate to the weather. So, the man passes a religious verdict that the use of cold water is superior and has drawn this conclusion using the evidence from the previous badeeth.

So is the error in the knowledge or the understanding?

The answer: Certainly the error is in the understanding, because the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) said:

Performing the ablution thoroughly despite the odds. ${ }^{49}$

And he (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam) did not say that you choose the cold water for wudoo, so there is a difference between the two expressions. If the second expression was reported in the badeeth, we would say yes, choose the cold water. However, he (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) said:

Performing the ablution thoroughly despite the odds.

i.e. the use of cold water does not prevent one from performing $w u$ doo.

Then, we say, does Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) intend ease for His servants or does He (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) intend hardship for [^32]them?

The answer: The saying of Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala):

Allaab intends for you ease, and He does not want to make things difficult for you. ${ }^{50}$

And in the saying of the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam):

Indeed, the religion is easy.
So I say to the students of knowledge: certainly the issue of understanding is an important issue, and it is upon us to understand what Allaah has intended for His servants. Did He (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) intend hardship for them in performing their acts of worship or did He intend ease for them?

Certainly, there is no doubt that Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) intended ease and not hardship for us.

And these are just some of the important disciplines which are obligatory for the student of knowledge to possess, thus influencing his knowledge so that he becomes a competent example and such that he becomes a caller to that which is good and a leader in the Religion of Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala). So, it is with patience and certainty that one attains leadership in the Religion, as Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

50 The Noble Qur.aan - Soorah al-Baqarah, Aayab 185.

And We made from among them, leaders, giving guidance under Our command, when they were patient and used to believe with certainty in Our Aayaat. ${ }^{51}$

51 The Noble Qur.aan - Soorab as-Sajdah, Aayab 24.

Part Two

Means Which Assist in Acquiring Knowledge

The means which assist in acquiring knowledge are many; from amongst them we mention (the following):

1. Taqwa - Fear of Allaah and Devotion to Him

This is the Recommendation of Allaah conveyed to the early and later generations amongst His servants, as Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

And verily, We have recommended to the people of the Scripture before you, and to you that you fear Allaah, and keep your duty to Him, But if you disbelieve, then unto Allaab belongs all that is in the beavens and all that is in the earth, and Allaab is

Ever Rich, Worthy of all praise. ${ }^{1}$

And this is also the recommendation of the Messenger of Allaah (salAllaabu 'alaybi wa sallam) for his nation, as Abu Umaamah Sadaa ibn 'Ajlaan al-Baahalee (radhi-yAllaahu 'anhu) said:
"'I heard the address of the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) on the occasion of the Last Pilgrimage in the course of which he said:

> Fear your Lord, observe the five (daily prayers), fast the month (of Ramadhaan); pay the zakaab (poor due) and obey those in authority among you (except when they order you to commit sin); you will then enter the Paradise of your Lord." ${ }^{2}$

When the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) used to dispatch a detachment of Sabaabab he used to advise their leader to fear Allaah, and those with him from amongst the Muslims, to do good.

And likewise, the Salaf continued to advise the people to fear Allaah in their khutbahs, their writings and their legacies at death.
'Umar ibn al-Khattaab (radhi-yAllaabu 'anhu) wrote to his son 'Abdullaah: "To proceed: Certainly I advise you to fear Allaab (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala), for he who fears Him, then He protects him, and be who asks of Him, then He rewards him with it, and he who thanks Him, then He increases him in it."

1 The Noble Qur.aan - Soorab an-Nisaa., Aayab 131.
2 at-Tirmidhee, The Book of Jumu'ah.

Likewise, Alee ibn Abee Taalib (radhi-yAllaahu 'anhu) advised a man saying: "I advise you to fear Allaab (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) Whom it is inevitable you are to meet, and there is no limit for you without Him, and He possesses this world and the Hereafter."

And one of the pious people wrote to one of his Muslim brothers: "To proceed: I advise you to fear Allaah Who will safeguard your innermost thoughts, and Who is a Watcher over your outward actions. So appoint Allaah over all your affairs from the night and the day. So fear Allaah according to His nearness to you and according to His Power over you, and know that with His Sight you never leave His Sovereignty for another or from His Dominion to another. And He will increase your awareness and fear of Him and sball safeguard you."

And the meaning of taqwa: That the servant assigns between himself and that which he fears a safeguard which will protect him from it.

And the taqwa of the servant of His Lord: That the servant assigns between himself and that which he is in awe of and reverence to, a safeguard which will protect him from His Anger and His Displeasure by doing that which is in obedience to Him and avoiding that which is in disobedience to Him.

And know that taqwa is often related to birr, so it is said birr and taqwa just as Allaah (Subhaanahu wa Ta'aala) says:

Help you one another in al-Birr and at-Taqwa. ${ }^{3}$

[^33]And sometimes it is mentioned singly; so if taqwa is coupled with birr, then birr becomes the doing of that which has been obligated and taqwa being leaving that which has been prohibited.

If it is singled out, then it encompasses the doing of that which has been obligated and leaving that which has been prohibited; as Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) has mentioned in His Book that Jannab has been prepared for the muttaqeen, so those who have taqwa are the people of Paradise - may Allaah make us all from amongst them! Because of this, it is obligatory upon the person to fear Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) in obedience of His Commands and seeking His Reward and salvation from His Punishment. Allaah (Subhaanahu wa Ta'aala) says:

> O you who believe! If you obey and fear Allaah, He will grant you Furqaan (a criterion) and will expiate for you your sins, and forgive you, and Allaab is the Owner of the Great Bounty. ${ }^{4}$

Within this aayab are three very important points of benefit:

First Point of Benefit: Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

4 The Noble Qur:aan - Soorab al-Anfaal, Aayab 29.

He will grant you Furqaan (a criterion). ${ }^{5}$

i.e. He will grant you that which will assist you in distinguishing the truth from the falsehood, and the harmful from the beneficial. Included in this category is knowledge which Allaah reveals to a person that which He does not reveal to any other. So taqwa is a means to attaining increased guidance, knowledge and memorisation; because of this, we quote the following from Imaam ash-Shaafi'ee (rahima-hullaah):
'I complained to Wakee'6 about my poor memory;
So he advised me to abandon sins. And he said: "Know that knowledge is light, And the Light of Allaab is not bestowed upon the sinner."'

There is no doubt, the more a person increases in knowledge, naturally he increases in learning and differentiating the truth from the falsehood, and the harmful from the beneficial, and like this he reaches a level whereby Allaah reveals understanding to him. This is because taqwa is a means for strengthening understanding, and strong understanding assists in increasing knowledge. So you see two men memorising an aayab from the Book of Allaah; one of them can extract from it three rulings, whilst the other is able to extract more than this, according to that which Allaah has blessed him with in understanding.

So taqwa is a means for increasing knowledge; also included in this is insight. Allaah has blessed the muttaqee with insight with which he is able to distinguish even amongst the people.

[^34]So, from simply seeing a person he is able to know whether he is honest or dishonest, or pious or obscene, such that it is possible he is able to judge a person whom he has not met and does not know anything about him because of what Allaah has blessed him with in terms of insight.

Second Point of Benefit: Allaah (Subhaanahu wa Ta'aala) says:

And will expiate for you your sins. ${ }^{7}$

Expiation of evil deeds is done by good actions, since good actions expiate evil deeds, as the Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam) said:

> The five daily prayers, andfrom one Juтu'abprayer to the next Jumu'ab prayer, and from fasting one Ramadbaan to fasting the next Ramadbaan is an expiation for that which occurs between them, so long as the major sins are avoided. ${ }^{8}$

And the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam) also said:

> The performance of an 'Umrab to the performance of the next 'Umrab is an expiation for that which occurs between them. ${ }^{9}$

So the expiation is by good actions; this means that if a person fears Al-

[^35]laah, Allaah will make it easy for him to do good actions with which he can make expiation.

Third Point of Benefit: Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) says:

And forgive you. ${ }^{10}$
i.e. that Allaah will make easy the seeking of forgiveness and repentance, for this is certainly a blessing of Allaah upon the servant.

2. Perseverance and Consistency in Seeking Knowledge

It should be pointed out to the student of knowledge that he must make every effort in obtaining knowledge and be patient whilst doing so, and to protect and preserve it once he has attained it. Certainly, knowledge is not acquired with ease and comfort. So the seeker pursues all the paths leading to knowledge and with that he is rewarded, as is confirmed in an authentic narration that the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) said:

Whoever treads a path in search of knowledge, Allaab will make easy for him the Path to Paradise. ${ }^{11}$

The student of knowledge must persevere and exert himself, and stay awake at night and pray to Allaah (Subhaanahu wa Ta'aala) to relieve 10 The Noble Qur.aan - Soorah al-Anfaal, Aayah 29.

11 Saheeh al-Bukhaaree: Chapter - Knowledge precedes Speech and Action;
Saheeb Muslim - The Book of Invitations; Musnad Imaam Ahmad.
him of all that preoccupies him from seeking knowledge.

There are well-known examples about the Salaf regarding perseverance in seeking knowledge, such as that narrated on the authority of Ibn Abbaas (radhi-yAllaabu 'anhu), who was asked about how knowledge is attained. He said: "With a questioning tongue, an intelligent and wise beart, and a bealthy body."

It is also narrated on his authority (radhi-yAllaabu 'anhu) that he said: "A narration about a man reached me, so I went to his house. I waited at his door and the wind was blowing sand upon me. Upon answering the door he said: ' $O$ son of the uncle of the Messenger of Allaah, what brings you bere? Had you sent for me I would bave come to you!'" So Ibn Abbaas (radhi-yAllaabu 'anhu) said: "It is more befitting that I come to you, and so I asked him about the narration."

Ibn 'Abbaas (radhi-yAllaahu 'anhu) was humble in seeking knowledge, so Allaah raised his rank.

Like this, it is befitting for the student of knowledge to display immense perseverance, such as that which is narrated regarding Imaam ashShaafi'ee (rahima-bullaab), when he was a guest of Imaam Ahmad one night. Supper was placed before him so Imaam ash-Shaafi'ee ate. Afterwards, the two men departed to their sleeping quarters. Imaam ash-Shaafi'ee remained awake thinking about extracting rulings from a particular badeeth; the saying of the Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam):

O Abu 'Umayr! What did the nughayr do? ${ }^{12}$

12 Saheeb al-Bukhaaree - The Book of Manners.

Abu 'Umayr had a small bird which he had named an-nughayr. So when the bird died the young child grieved over it.

As is known, the Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam) responded to him, just as he used to play and jest with the young children, he used to speak to each and every individual according to that which was appropriate to them.

So Imaam ash-Shaafi'ee continued the entire night in extracting rulings from this badeeth; and it has been said that he managed to extract more than one thousand points of benefit. It was possible that he deduced one point of benefit which prompted him to another badeeth and like this he continued until he finished, such that when the adbaan (call to prayer) for Salaatul-Fajr was made, Imaam ash-Shaafi'ee (rabimabullaab) rose and did not make ablution, and then left for his house. Imaam Ahmad praised him within his family, so they said to him: " $O$ Abu 'Abdullaab, how is it you praise this man who ate and drank and then slept and did not stand the night in prayer, and then performed Salaatul-Fajr without ablution?"

So Imaam Ahmad questioned Imaam ash-Shaaf'ee, who said: "As for my baving eaten until I had finished what was put before me, that was because I bad not found food which tasted better than the food of Imaam Abmad, so I wanted to fill my belly with it. And as for my not baving stood the night in prayer, then the seeking of knowledge is better than standing the night in prayer as I was busy pondering over a badeeth. And as for my baving not made ablution for Salaatul-Fajr, then I was already in a state of ablution from Salaatul-'Ishaa."

And this is also because he did not wish to inconvenience them for water to renew his ablution.

In any case, perseverance in seeking knowledge is an important matter; so we look at ourselves today, do we have such perseverance? No! As for those who study under the education system, then when they finish their lessons perhaps they pass their time with things which do not assist them in their studies. I offer an example, the like of which I hope does not occur:

One of the students in a lesson answered rudely, so the teacher asked him: "Why?"

And the student said: "Because I bave given up hope of understanding this subject, so I do not study it. However, I want to attain a certificate in the subject."

Why such loss of hope?

This is a major mistake. It is obligatory that we persevere until we reach our goal.

As my Sbaykh, the persevering 'Abdur-Rahmaan as-Sa'dee (rahimabullaab) related to me about al-Kisaa.ee, who was the Imaam of the people of Koofah in Arabic grammar. He sought knowledge in Arabic grammar but was not able to achieve this. So one day, he saw an ant carrying some food for itself whilst climbing a wall. Each time it climbed up, it fell; however, it persevered until it had rid itself of the difficulty and finally scaled the wall. So al-Kisaa.ee said: "This ant persevered until it reached its goal." So he himself persevered until he became a scholar in Arabic grammar.

Therefore, it is befitting for us, O students of knowledge, that we persevere and we do not lose hope, for verily losing hope means shutting the door to good. And it is befitting for us that we are not pessimistic, rather we are optimistic and that we turn ourselves to that which is good.

3. Memorising and Preserving

It is obligatory upon the student of knowledge to adhere to revise and verify that which he learns, either by memorising it by heart or by writing it, since man is only human and is liable to forget. If he does not adhere to continuous revision and repetition of that which he learns, then this will lead him to forget and ultimately lose what he has learnt.

It has been said:
> 'Knowledge is a "bunting game" (which is sought), and writing is the way to "catch" (attain) it. So it is from foolishness to bunt a gazelle, and thereafter leave it to perish.'

What is implied is that writing is the ideal method by which one gains knowledge and it would be foolish to simply seek knowledge without writing, as this knowledge will ultimately be lost.

From the ways which assist in memorising knowledge and verifying it, is that the person follows the right path with the knowledge he has. As Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) says:

While as for those who accept guidance, He increases their guidance, and bestows on them their piety. ${ }^{13}$

13 The Noble Qur:aan - Soorab Muhammad, Aayab 17.

And He (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

And Allaab increases in guidance those who walk aright. ${ }^{14}$

So, the more a person does an action according to his knowledge, Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) increases him in his ability to memorise and understand, as He (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

He increases their guidance. ${ }^{15}$

4. Accompanying the Scholars

It is obligatory upon the student of knowledge to seek assistance from Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala), then from the people of knowledge, in addition to seeking assistance from that which the people of knowledge have written in their books; Because confining oneself to reading alone requires a lot of time, which is contrary to sitting with a scholar who explains and sheds light upon matters for him.

I am not saying he will not attain knowledge except by taking from the scholars, since a person is able to attain knowledge by reading and researching; however, in most cases if he does not persevere day and night and is not blessed with understanding, then he is liable to make many mistakes, and because of this it is said:

14 The Noble Qur.aan - Soorab Maryam, Aayab 76.
15 The Noble Qur.aan - Soorah Muhammad, Aayab 17.

'One whose guide is his book, then bis mistakes are more prevalent than him being correct.'

Having said this, in reality this is not always the case.

However, the most exemplary way is to take knowledge from the scholars. I also advise the student of knowledge not to "grab" from every scholar, knowledge of the same subject. For example, to study figh with more than one scholar, since the scholars differ in their techniques of inference from the Qur.aan and the Sunnah, and they also differ in their opinions. So assign yourself a scholar from whom you can take knowledge in fiqh or balaaghab and the like, i.e. take knowledge in one subject from one scholar. If the scholar has more than one field of knowledge, then continue with him, for if you took knowledge of figh for example from such-and-such and then such-and-such, and they differed in their opinions, what would be your position since you are still a student?! Your position would be that of confusion and doubt! However, your continuance with one scholar in a particular subject will lead to peace of mind, insbaa.-Allaah.

Chapter Three

Paths to acquiring knowledge and mistakes against which precautions must be taken.

Within this chapter there are two parts:

Part One

Paths to Acquiring Knowledge

Part Two

Mistakes against which Precautions Must Be Taken

Part One

Paths to Acquiring Knowledge

From that which is known is that if a person wanted to get to a place, then it is imperative he knows the way to reach it, and if there are many ways, then he will search for the shortest and easiest way. Because of this, it is important for the student of knowledge to base his search for knowledge on principles and not to beat around in the darkness (of ignorance); for he who is not well-versed in the principles is prevented from reaching his goal, as the poet says:

To proceed: Knowledge is a vast ocean,
(and) the seeker will never attain all of it. However, in (learning) the principles there is ease in attaining it, so take care and you will find a way. Learn the rules and principles, since be who does not is prevented from arriving at the goal.

So the principles are the knowledge, and the issues are the branches; just like the foundation of the tree and its branches. If the branches are not upon a firm foundation, they will wither and ultimately perish. However, what are the principles? Are they the authentic proofs? Or are they rules? Or are they both?

The principles are the proofs from the Qur.aan and the Sunnab and the rules that are obtained by following and studying them. These are from amongst the most important for the student of knowledge. For example, "hardship gives way to ease," and this is from the principles that are extracted from the Qur.aan and the Sunnab.

In the Qur.aan, Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

And He bas not laid upon you in religion any

 bardship. ${ }^{1}$And from the Sunnah, the saying of the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam) to 'Imraan ibn Husayn:

> Perform your prayer standing, and if you are unable to do so, then sitting down, and ifyou are unable to do so, then lying down on your side. ${ }^{2}$

And the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) also said:

If I have ordered you to do something, then do that which you are able to do. ${ }^{3}$

If a thousand different issues were put forward for you to pass judge-

[^36]2 Sabeeh al-Bukhaaree - The Book of Shortening the Prayer;
Sabeeh Muslim - The Book of the Travellers Prayer and it's Shortening.
3 Saheeb al-Bukhaaree - The Book of Adherence (to Allaah and His Messenger); Sabeeh Muslim - The Book of Hajj.
ment upon, then it is possible for you to do so based upon this principle. However, if you did not have knowledge of this principle, and a couple of issues were put forward to you, then they would all be a cause of difficulty for you.

So there are two ways to acquiring knowledge:

1. Referring to reliable books

That you take from reliable books, and particularly those which have been written by scholars known for their knowledge and trustworthiness, and sound 'aqeedab - being free from any form of innovations and deviations. It is imperative that the person, in taking knowledge from books, reaches the goal he set out for. However, in this there are two obstacles:

The first obstacle: That the person requires a lot of time and tough endurance and great effort so that he reaches that which he is aiming for in his search for knowledge. Often, many people do not give importance to this obstacle, especially since they see they have wasted much time without benefit. Therefore, laziness overcomes them and they become exhausted and bored such that they are unable to attain that which they set out for.

The second obstacle: That he who takes his knowledge simply from books, then his knowledge is mostly weak. It is not built upon principles or rules. As a result of this, we find he has many mistakes. This is because he does not possess any principles or rules upon which he is able to build the different aspects of knowledge which are found in the Qur. aan and the Sunnab.

We find some people refer to a badeeth which is not mentioned in the authentic books of badeeth, and this manner is contrary to that which is from the authentic principles dictated by the people of knowledge. Then he takes this badeeth and bases his 'aqeedab upon it. Without a doubt this is a mistake, because the Qur.aan and the Sunnab have principles upon which the different aspects of knowledge are based. Thus, it is imperative to refer these different aspects of knowledge to principles; so that if we find anything from them which is conflicting with these principles, such that it is not possible to arrive at a consensus, then we leave these different aspects of knowledge.

2. Referring to a reliable teacher

From the ways to acquiring knowledge is that you take from a teacher who is reliable in his knowledge and religion, and this is the fastest and most reliable manner for seeking knowledge. As with the first approach the student is open to deviation while he does not know, either because of his lack of understanding or inadequate knowledge or other than these reasons.

As for the second approach, then here there is constructive discussion whilst taking knowledge and refuting (doubts) with the teacher. With this, many doors of understanding, verification and methods of safeguarding the authentic statements and refuting the weak statements, are opened for the student. If the student was to combine the two approaches then this is more perfect and complete.

So, the student of knowledge begins with that which is important and then moves on in order of importance. He starts with the short texts of knowledge before moving onto the extended full-length texts. He progresses from level to level, and does not progress to the next level until he is fully versed in the preceding level, such that his progression is sound and complete.

Part Two

Mistakes against which Precautions Must Be Taken

There are mistakes which some of the students of knowledge fall into, and amongst them are:

1. Jealousy and Envy

It is to dislike that which Allaah has blessed one of His servants with. It is not just a desire for the cessation of that which Allaah has blessed other than him with; rather it is absolute dislike of the person for that which Allaah has blessed him with over and above someone else. And this is jealousy and envy, irrespective of whether it is a desire for its cessation or for it remaining whilst he dislikes him.

Just as has been affirmed by Shaykb al-Islaam Ibn Taymiyyah (rahimabullaab) who said: "Jealousy and envy is disliking a person for that which Allaab has blessed him with over and above others."

Often jealousy will not leave the inner soul, meaning that it becomes compulsive within the soul. However, it has been mentioned in a badeeth:

If you become jealous, then do not intend it; and if you become suspicious, then do not seek it out. ${ }^{1}$

Meaning, that it is obligatory upon a person, should he notice jealousy in his heart for another, that he does not offend him with any statement or action, for certainly that is from the practice of the Jews, about whom Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) says:

Or do they envy men for what Allaab has given them of His Bounty? Then We had already given the family of Ibraabeem the Book and alHikmab (asSunnab), and conferred upon them a great kingdom. ${ }^{2}$

Then the jealous one falls into many prohibitions:

Firstly: His disliking that which Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) has decreed, for certainly, disliking that which Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) has blessed someone with is to dislike that which Allaah has decreed. This constitutes opposing the ruling of Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala).

[^37]Secondly: Jealousy devours the good deeds, just as fire devours wood; for in most cases the jealous one is prepared for his victim with mention of that which he dislikes by frightening the people away from the victim, and putting him down in that which he is able. And this is from amongst the major sins which could possibly outweigh one's good deeds.

Thirdly: That which settles in the heart of the jealous one, in the form of grief and the burning "fire" which devours him, such that each time Allaah bestows a blessing upon his victim, he becomes distressed and his chest tightens. He observes this person, and in all that Allaah has blessed him with, he is saddened and distressed and the world around him tightens.

Fourthly: Certainly in jealousy there is a likening to the Jews, and that which is known is that he who involves himself in a practice of the disbelievers becomes one of them in this act, as the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) said:

Whoever resembles a people (nation); then be is (considered to be) from amongst them. ${ }^{3}$

[^38]Fifthly: Jealousy conflicts with the completeness of eemaan, as the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) has said:

None of you truly believes until be wishes for his brother what be wishes for himself. ${ }^{4}$

This means that you dislike for the cessation of a blessing of Allaah upon another, and if you do not dislike this then you do not love for your brother that which you love for yourself, and this conflicts with the completeness of eemaan.

Sixthly: Jealousy results in the turning away of the servant from asking Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) of His Favours; so you find him always concerned with the blessing which Allaah has bestowed upon other than him, and subsequenty, he fails to ask Allaah of His Favours, as He (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) said:

And wish not for the things in which Allaab bas made some of you to excel others. For men there is reward for what they have earned, for women there is reward for what they bave earned, and ask Allaab of His Bounty. ${ }^{5}$

[^39]Seventhly: Jealousy leads to contempt of the blessing of Allaah upon him. Meaning, that the jealous one sees he is not in any blessing, and the victim is in a blessing greater than him, and as a result, despises the blessing of Allaah upon himself and does not turn to express gratitude, but instead becomes neglectful.

Eighthly: Jealousy is an ugly characteristic. The jealous one observes the blessings of Allaah upon someone from amongst his group, then he attempts, with all he is able to muster, to interfere amongst the people and the victim by putting him down in that which he is able. He does this by scorning at that which the victim attempts in doing good as well as other things.

Ninthly: That the jealous one, when he becomes jealous of his victim, often resorts to attacking him; in this case, his victim will take from his good deeds on the Day of Judgement, and if there are no good deeds remaining, the jealous one will take from the evil deeds of the victim, such that he will finally be hurled into the hellfire.

Summary: Certainly jealousy is an ugly characteristic, and sadly it is more prevalent amongst the scholars and the students of knowledge, and amongst the merchants too. Indeed, anyone who has a trade, then his opponent is jealous of him. However, it is more predominant amongst the scholars and the students of knowledge. This is sad, particularly since it is more appropriate and befitting for the people of knowledge to be the furthest from jealousy and the nearest to the perfection of good morals and ethics.

My dear brother, if you see that Allaah has blessed one of his servants with something, then strive hard to be like him. Do not dislike him whom Allaah has blessed with something, rather say:

0 Allaab increase for him from your favours and grant me better than him.

And jealousy does not change a thing from the state of the victim; however, as we have just mentioned in these causes of corruption and evil and the nine dangers listed, hopefully, he who reflects over them will find much to ponder over, and Allaah is the One from Whom assistance is sought.

2. Passing a Religious Verdict without Sound Knowledge

Passing religious verdicts is a great rank; with it, one who is qualified is able to deal with issues that are uncertain for the general public in matters of their religion, that which guides them to the Straight Path. Since this is such a great rank, no-one should put themselves forward for it unless they are qualified to do so. Therefore, it is obligatory for the servants of Allaah to fear Him and not speak except upon sound knowledge.

Know that He is the Creator and all matters are at His disposal. So there is no creator except Allaah; there is no planner for the creation except Allaah, and there is no law for the creation except the Law of Allaah. So it is He Who obligates and prohibits things, just as He is the One Who permits things. Allaah has rebuked those who make things balaal and baraam based upon their whims and desires as He (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

Say: "Tell me, what provision Allaab has sent down to you! And you bave made of it lawful and unlawful." Say: "Has Allaab permitted you, or do you invent a lie against Allaab?" And what think those who invent lies against Allaab, on the Day of Resurrection? ${ }^{6}$

As He (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) also says:

And say not concerning that which your tongues put forth falsely: "This is lawful and this is forbidden," so as to invent lies against Allaab. Verily, those who invent lies against Allaab will never prosper. A passing brief enjoyment, but they will bave a painful torment. ${ }^{7}$ [^40]Certainly from amongst the greatest sins is for a person to say something is halaal or haraam while he does not know Allaah's (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) Judgement upon it. Or he says something is waajib while he does not know that Allaah has made it waajib, or he says something is ghayr waajib while he does not know that Allaah has made it ghayr waajib. Certainly, these are serious offences and ill-manners towards Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala).

How is it O servant of Allaah, that you know the judgement is for Allaah alone and you put yourself forward before Him and say about His Religion and His Law that which you do not know? Allaah has linked such a statement without knowledge to shirk (associating partners with Him), as He (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) says:

Say: "The things that my Lord has indeed forbidden are al-Fawaahish (great evil sins) whether committed openly or secretly, sins, unrighteous oppression, joining partners with Allaab for which He bas given no authority, and saying things about Allaab of which you bave no knowledge."

Many amongst the general Muslims pass religious verdicts about that which they do not know. So you find them saying such-and-such is balaal or haraam, or waajib or ghayr waajib, while they know absolutely nothing about it!

[^41]Do they not know that Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) is going to question them about that which they have said, on the Day of Judgement?

Do they not know if they misguide someone by making something balaal while Allaah has made it baraam, or making something baraam while Allaah has made it balaal, that they draw themselves to his sins and upon them is the burden of that which he does, and that is as a result of what they passed as a religious verdict for him?

There are some who commit yet another offence. If they see someone who wants to seek the judgement of a scholar, they say to him there is no need to seek the judgement of a scholar, since the matter is quite clear that it is haraam, while in actual fact it is balaal (or vice versa).

So he makes baraam that which Allaah has made balaal, or he says to him this is waajib and obligates upon him that which Allaah has not obligated, or he says this is ghayr waajib, while it is waajib; thereby relieving him of that which Allaah has obligated upon him, or he says this is halaal when in actual fact it is haraam.

His offence is against the Law of Allaah and deception against his Muslim brother since he has passed a religious verdict without sound knowledge.

Have you seen when someone asks you directions to a place, and you say the way is from here while in actual fact you do not know; will the people not consider this to be deception on your part? Then how do you speak about the way to Jannab which is the Law Allaah has revealed while you know nothing about it?!

And certainly some of the teachers are but small fish compared to the scholars, since they fall into that which the general Muslim has fallen into by way of audacity in matters of making something balaal and baraam, or waajib and the like. So they talk about that which they do not know, and they generalise the Sharee'ab and categorise it, while they are amongst the most ignorant people with regard to the Judgement of Allaah. If you were to hear one of them speak, it is as if revelation were descending upon him in that which he is saying with absolute authority and lack of caution. Is it not possible for him to say: I do not know, with the fact that lack of knowledge is one of his true and confirmed attributes? However, he insists, based upon his ignorance, that he is knowledgeable. So as a result he harms the general Muslims, because perhaps the people have trust in what he is saying and are being deceived by him.

If only these people confined themselves to that which is of real concern to them. Instead, you see them ascribing to Islaam that which they do not know, and then saying Islaam says such-and-such, and views such-and-such. This is not permissible, except for that which the speaker knows is from the Religion of Islaam. There is no cure for this except by knowing and understanding the Book of Allaah and the Sunnab of His Messenger (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam) and the consensus of the Muslims upon it.

Certainly, some of the people, because of their audacity, lack of piety, modesty and their lack of fear of Allaah, say regarding something which is clearly baraam, "I do not think it is baraam," or regarding something which is clearly waajib, "I do not think it is waajib." This is either as a result of their ignorance about it; their stubbornness and obstinacy; or causing doubt for the servant of Allaah regarding the Religion of Allaah.

O brothers, certainly it is from common sense and eemaan and from the fear of Allaah that a man says regarding that which he does not know

- "I bave no knowledge," or "I do not know," or "Ask other than me," for certainly this is from the completeness of common sense. This is because if the people saw him to be certain, they would have trust in him. Also, he knows his own limits, thereby humbling himself by stating he does not know.

Certainly, this is from the completeness of eemaan in Allaah and fear of Him, that he does not put himself forward before his Lord and does not say about Him nor His Religion that which he does not know.

The Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) was the most knowledgeable of all creation regarding the Religion of Allaah, and he used to be questioned regarding that which was not revealed upon him in the form of wahee; so he used to wait until revelation was revealed to him, then Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala) would reply regarding that which His Messenger was questioned about:

They ask you what is lawful for them. Say: "Lawful unto you are at-Tayyibaat (all Halaal foods)."

And He (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

$$
\begin{aligned}
& \text { وَسَسْكَوْكَكُ }
\end{aligned}
$$

> And they ask you about Dhul-Qarnayn. Say: "I shall recite to you something of bis story." ${ }^{10}$

[^42]And He (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

> They ask you about the Hour: "When will be its appointed time?" Say: "The knowledge thereof is with my Lord. None can reveal its time but He."11

It used to be that the Sabaabah, when presented with an issue about which they did not know the Judgement of Allaah, they used to be afraid, and chose to abstain from passing their own judgement.

So we have Abu Bakar as-Siddeeq (radhi-yAllaahu 'anhu) who said: "Which sky will shade me? And which land will harbour me if I were to speak about the Book of Allaah without sound knowledge?"

And we have 'Umar ibn al-Khattaab (radhi-yAllaabu 'anhu), when an incident occurred, he gathered together the Sabaabab and began consulting them regarding it.

Ibn Seereen said: "There was none more afraid regarding that which be did not know than Abu Bakar, and there was none after Abu Bakar more afraid regarding that which he did not know than 'Umar ibn al-Khattaab."

Ibn Mas'ood (radhi-yAllaabu 'anhu) said: "O people! Anyone who is questioned about that which he bas knowledge of then let him speak, and anyone who does not have knowledge then he should say, "Allaab knows best," for certainly from baving knowledge is to say, "Allaab knows best" regarding that which you do not know."

11 The Noble Qur.aan - Soorah al-A'raaf, Aayab 187.

Ash-Sha'bee was questioned about an issue and he said: "I am not wellversed in it."

So his companions said to him: "We bave become shy for you."

So he said: "But the angels did not become shy when it was said:

We have no knowledge except what you have taught us. ${ }^{" 12}$

And there are many examples of passing religious verdicts without sound knowledge, and amongst them are:

If a sick person's clothing became impure and it was not possible for him to purify it, then a religious verdict is passed that he should not offer his prayers until he purifies his clothing. And this religious verdict is a lie and an error. Rather, if he is unable to purify them, the sick person should offer his prayers despite his clothing and body being impure, because Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) says:

So keep your duty to Allaab and fear Him as much as you can. ${ }^{13}$

[^43]So the sick person offers his prayers according to his condition and his ability to do so. He prays standing, and if he is unable to do so, then sitting, and if he is unable to do so, then upon his side (lying down), nodding with his head if he is able to do so. If he is unable to do so, then some of the people of knowledge permit the blinking of the eyes, and if he is unable to blink with his eyes, and if he is sane, then he should make the intention for the act in his heart and must make the statement with his tongue.

For example, he says: Allaahu-Akbar, then he recites Soorab al-Faatihah and another Soorab. Then he says: Allaabu-Akbar, and makes the intention he is bowing down. Then he says: Sami'a Allaabu li-man Hami$d a b u$, then he makes the intention he has risen from the bowing down position. Then he says likewise in the prostration and the rest of the acts of the prayer. He makes the intention for that act which he is unable to do, so he makes the intention in his heart, and he should not delay the prayer from its time.

Because of the grave error in the aforementioned religious verdict, some Muslims die while not having prayed! And if they knew that a sick person can pray in any condition, they would have died having prayed!

Just like this issue, and many which are similar to it, it is obligatory upon the general Muslims to take religious verdicts from the people of knowledge. By this, they will know the Judgement of Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala), and they will not say regarding the Religion of Allaah that which they do not know.

3. Pride

The Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam) has explained this in a most clear and complete explanation, as he (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam) said:

Pride is ridiculing the truth (out of self-conceit) and contempt for the people. ${ }^{14}$

To be arrogant about the truth is to reject the truth, and to deny the people their right is to be in contempt of them. From pride and arrogance is refuting your teacher and being rude and ill-mannered towards him. Also, abstaining from one from whom benefit can be sought is from pride and arrogance.

Sadly, this befalls some of the students of knowledge. If someone informs them of something they do not have knowledge of, they abstain from it and do not accept it. Negligence of an action about which one has knowledge is an announcement of refusal and denial. We ask Allaah to improve our affairs.

Regarding this, it has been said:

And the meaning of the verse: It is not possible for the proud youth to gain knowledge because knowledge is not sought with pride. So his pride is his enemy; just like the flood (of water) is unable to overcome high ground, thereby not allowing the water to settle upon it. Similarly, knowledge does not settle with pride and haughtiness, quite possibly one is deprived of knowledge because of this very reason.

14 Saheeh Muslim - The Book of Eemaan.

4. Being Partial to a Particular Madbhab and Opinion

It is obligatory for the student of knowledge to abandon the following:

Sectarianism and bizbiyyah, such that you join allegiance, and keep clear of something according to a particular sect or party. This, without a doubt, is contrary to the methodology of the Salaf. The Salaf were not parties, rather they were one party, adhering to the saying of Allaah (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala):

It is He Who has named you Muslims before. ${ }^{15}$

So there is no bizbiyyah, diversity, loyalty, or hostility, only according to that which is mentioned in the Qur.aan and the Sunnab. For example, from amongst the people there are those who seek hizbiyyab of particular groups and establish their methodology based upon evidence which can either be proof against them or proof for them. They misguide those who are upon other than their way, even though they were closer to the truth than them. They adopt a principle: "Anyone who is not with me, then be is against me." This is a repulsive principle, because there is a mid-point between being for you or against you, and if he is against you in truth, then he is in actual fact with you, because the Prophet (salAllaabu 'alaybi wa sallam) said:

Help your brother whether he is an oppressor or the oppressed. ${ }^{16}$

[^44]Assisting the oppressor is to prevent him from causing oppression.

Therefore, when bizbiyyab began appearing amongst the Muslims and the paths became diversified and the Ummah became divided, some of them began misguiding the others and began "eating the flesh of their dead brother" as they were afflicted by failure, as Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) says:

And do not dispute lest you lose courage and your strength depart. ${ }^{17}$

Due to this, we find some students of knowledge study with a particular Shaykh. They stand by their Shaykb in truth and falsehood and show hostility to other than him, considering them to be misguided and innovators. They consider their Shaykb a scholar of reform and anyone other than him to be either ignorant or corrupt. And this is a great mistake; instead it is obligatory to take from whoever's speech conforms to the Qur.aan and the Sunnab and the sayings of the Sabaabab of the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam).

5. Putting Oneself Forward Before Being Suitably Qualified

From that which is obligatory for precaution to be taken against, is the student of knowledge putting himself forward before being suitably qualified; for if he was to do so, then this would indicate the following:

Firstly: His having a high opinion of himself; that he has put himself forward, thus regarding himself as something of an authority amongst

the distinguished;

Secondly: This would be indicative of his lack of understanding and knowledge of issues. Because if he has put himself forward, it is possible he has fallen into something which is not possible for him to be free of, therefore when the people see such a person, they refute him in issues so as to highlight his faults;

Thirdly: Certainly, if he has put himself forward before being suitably qualified, then it is certain he is speaking about the Qur:aan and the Sunnab that which he does not know. In most cases, he whose intention is this does not care and therefore responds to all he is questioned about and as a result he is hazardous with his speech at the expense of the Qur. aan and the Sunnab.

Fourthly: Certainly, if a person has put himself forward, then in most cases he does not accept the truth. Because in his foolishness, he assumes that if he were to succumb to other than him, even though they were upon the truth, this would be evidence that he is not a scholar.

6. Evil Suspicion

It is obligatory upon the student of knowledge to take precaution against evil suspicion about another. For example his saying, "He does not give in charity except to show-off." Or, "The student does not pose this question except seeking to show-off, so that it is known be is a student with understanding."

It was the habit of the munaafiqoon, that when an almsgiver came forward to offer a large amount of charity, they would say: "Hypocrite!" and if he was to offer a small amount of charity, they would say: "Allaab is not in need of this charity," and Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) has said regarding them:

Those who defame such of the believers who give charity voluntarily, and those who could not find to give charity except what is available to them, so they mock at them, Allaab will throw back their mockery on them, and they shall have a painful torment. ${ }^{18}$

So be careful of falling into evil suspicion about someone who appears upright. There is no difference in having evil suspicion about your teacher or your friend, since that which is obligatory is to offer a kind thought to one who is evidently upright. As for he who is evidently not upright, then there is no harm in having evil suspicion about him in your heart. However, it is upon you to confirm this until this false impression is removed from your heart. This is because some people often have evil suspicion about someone based upon a false impression which has no basis.

So if you have evil suspicion about someone regardless of whether it is a student of knowledge or not, then it is obligatory upon you to verify whether there is clear evidence which permits you to harbour such evil suspicion. If there is, then there is no harm in this. However, if it is a totally false impression, then this is not permissible towards a Muslim whose uprightness is evident, since Allaah (Subhaanabu wa Ta'aala)

says:

O you who believe! Avoid much suspicions. ${ }^{19}$

Allaah (Subbaanahu wa Ta'aala) did not say all suspicion, because some suspicion has a basis and is acceptable:

Indeed some suspicions are sin. ${ }^{20}$

As for suspicion which causes hostility towards someone, then there is no doubt it is a sin. The same is the case for suspicion which has no basis. However if there is a basis, then there is no harm for you to have evil suspicion.

It is imperative for the person to assume a level that befits him, and not compromise it with corruption and evil. Rather, he should be wary of these mistakes which have been mentioned. This is because the student of knowledge has had honour conferred upon him by Allaah through knowledge, and has thus made him a model and example, such that Allaah has commanded the turning of the affairs of the people in matters of difficulty to the scholars, as He (Subhaanahu wa Ta'aala) says:

So ask the Abl adb-Dhikr (people of the knowledge)

if you do not know. ${ }^{21}$

And He (Subbaanabu wa Ta'aala) says:

When there comes to them some matter touching safety or fear, they make it known, if only they had referred it to the Messenger or to those charged with authority among them, the proper investigators would have understood it from them. ${ }^{22}$

So that which is evident O student of knowledge, is that you are respected. Therefore, do not lower yourself to a demeaning level; rather be like that which is befitting for you to be.

Chapter Four

Recommended Books for Students of Knowledge and Islaamic Rulings related to Seeking Knowledge and Points of Benefit.

Within this chapter there are three parts:

Part One

Recommended Books for Students of Knowledge

Part Two

Islaamic Rulings related to Seeking Knowledge

Part Three

Points of Benefit

Part One

Recommended Books for Students of Knowledge

Before beginning this chapter, it is imperative to point out some important issues for the student of knowledge, and these are:

1. How to conduct yourself with a book

Firstly - Knowing its subject: It is imperative to know the subject of the book so that you can derive benefit from it.

Secondly - Knowing its technical terminology: Knowing the terminology will assist you in saving a lot of time. This is what the scholars do in the introduction of their books. For example, we know if the author of upon in authenticity by Imaam al-Bukhaaree and Imaam Muslim. However, the author of "الـــُمنْتَقَىَ"》 differs in this matter; so if he says „» he means that which is agreed upon in authenticity by Imaam Ahmad, Imaam al-Bukhaaree and Imaam Muslim.

The same is the case with the books of fiqh where they differentiate

As for «الرِّوَايَتَانا», then this is according to Imaam Ahmad, and الوَجْهَانان» is according to the major scholars from his adherents, and all of these.

Like this, he needs to know for example if the author says «إجْمَاعاًا» or said «ووفَاقا" he means amóngst the three Imaams, as is the terminology used by the author of "الفُرُوْعْ; a book dealing with the fiqh of the Hanbalee madbhab. Similarly, the rest of the authors of the other madbaahib; each one has his own terminology, so it is imperative to know the terminology of the author.

Thirdly - Knowing its style and expressions: You find if you were to read a book for the first time, especially if it is a book of Islaamic knowledge, it may offer you expressions which require you to carefully consider and think about each meaning. So if you were to read the book a few times, you would understand it sufficiently, such that it would be as if you had written it.

There is a matter which is external to the issue of your conduct with a book and that is making beneficial notes in it, either in the margins or in the footnotes. It is important the student of knowledge takes advantage of the opportunity to do this. If you come across an issue that requires explanation, evidence or justification, and you fear you may forget it, then you must make a note of it either in the margin, which is either on the right or the left of the page or in the footnote, which is at the bottom of the page.

There is much which slips by a person, such as these points of benefit. However, if you were to have made a note of it, it would not have taken a minute to do, and then if you were to refer to it at a later time, it would remind you. So it is imperative for the student of knowledge to pay attention to this, especially with the books of fiqh. You may pass by an issue in some books which mention its ruling; however, you then may come to a standstill because of a problem. If you were to refer to the books which are broader in scope than this particular book which is before you, you will find a statement which makes the issue clearer. You should then make a note of this statement as you may wish to refer to it at another time if necessary, without having to refer to the original book from which you had taken note. You will find this is something that will save you much time.

2. Reading books is of two types

Firstly - Planned and comprehensive reading. It is imperative for the person to contemplate and be patient over what he reads.

Secondly - Browsing and reading the book with speed. This does not in itself attain comprehensive and planned reading as it did in the first type.

The ideal way to read a book is to think and reflect on the meanings of the words and to seek assistance from those who understand from the people of knowledge. No doubt, in this regard, the most deserving of books is the Book of Allaah. So you must be patient and persevere, since no-one has been given anything as good and encompassing as patience.

3. Collecting books

It is befitting for the student of knowledge to adhere to collecting books. However, you must begin with the important then move along in order of importance. If you are not in a financial position to do so, then it is neither good nor wise to buy many books which will force you at some stage to forfeit their value. This is ill-minded purchasing. If you cannot afford to buy books, then it is possible for you to borrow from any library.

4. Adhering to the important books

It is obligatory upon the student of knowledge to adhere more to the major books of the past, instead of those written recently. This is because some authors of today do not possess firm and well-rooted knowledge. As a result, if you read that which they write you will find it is shallow and superficial. They may transmit something in their own words distorting it into a long expression and rendering it absolute rubbish! So it is upon you to adhere to the major books of the Salaf, for certainly they are better and more blessed by far than the books of the successors.

In most cases the books of the later modern authors have little meaning and much wording and expression; you read a complete page and it is possible for you to summarise it in a line or two! However, with the books of the Salaf you will find them effortless to read, resilient, easy and satisfying. You will not find one word except that it has a purpose and meaning.

Amongst the most highly regarded and important books which are obligatory upon the student of knowledge to adhere to are the books of Shaykh al-Islaam Ibn Taymiyyah and his student Ibn al-Qayyim (rahimabumAllaab).

From that which is known is that the books of Ibn al-Qayyim are much easier to read and understand whilst those of Shaykb al-Islaam Ibn Taymiyyah are very high powered because of his more abundant knowledge and brilliance of mind. Despite being his foremost student, Ibn al-Qayyim was not a copy of Ibn Taymiyyah, rather, Ibn al-Qayyim was independent in his own right: if he saw his Shaykb differed with that which he felt was correct he would speak up.

Thus, he made clear his differing in opinion, and therefore he (rabimabullaab) is a distinct individual of independent thought. However, there is no surprise when he agrees with his Shaykh (rahima-bullaah) in that which he saw as true and correct. Whilst there is no doubt if you carefully contemplate the general opinions of Shaykh al-Islaam you will find they are correct, and this is an issue that one who reflects on both their books will come to know of.

5. Categorising books

Books are divided into three categories:

First category: Good books;

Second category: Evil/corrupt books;

Third category: Books that are neither good nor evil.

So adhere to making your library free of any books which have no good in them or have evil in them. It is said that there are some books on good manners, however they waste time and bring about no benefit. And there are harmful books which have specific thoughts and a specific manbaj; so these books must also be excluded from your library despite them being on manbaj or 'aqeedah. For example, the books of the innovators which are harmful in 'aqeedah, and the books of rebellion and revolution which are harmful to the manhaj. Generally, all books that are harmful should be excluded from your library; since books are nourishment for the soul, like food and drink are for the body. If you were nourished with that which is similar to these books, then you would be afflicted with great harm, and as a result, you would pursue a path differing to the manhaj of the upright student of knowledge.

Recommended books for students of knowledge ${ }^{1}$ :

Firstly - 'Aqeedab

\begin{aligned}
& \text { [1] ثلاثة الأصول - عمدد بن عبد الوهاب } \\
& \text { [2] القواعد الأربع - محمد بن عبد الوهاب } \\
& \text { [3] كشف الشبهات - عحمد بن عبد الوهاب } \\
& \text { [4] كتاب التو حيد - عحمد بن عبد الوهاب } \\
& \text { [5] العقيدة الواسطية - شيخ الإسلام ابن تيمية }
\end{aligned}
$$

This book [5] comprises the Tawheed of Allaah's Asmaa. and Sifaat, and is amongst the best that has been written in this field, and it is worthwhile reading and referring to.
[7][ العقيدة التدمرية الحموية - شيخ الإسلام الإسلام ابن تيميةية

These two treatises [6] and [7] are broader than «العقيدة الواسطية».

[^46]\[

\begin{aligned}
& \text { [8] العقيدة الطحاوية - أبو جعفر حمد بن محمد الطحاوي } \\
& \text { [9] شرح العقيدة الطحاوية - أبو الحسن علي بن أبي العز } \\
& \text { [10] الدرر السنية في الأجوبة النجدية - عبد الرحمن بن قاسم }
\end{aligned}
$$
\]

Secondly - Hadeeth

$$
\begin{aligned}
& \text { [1] فتح الباري شرح صحيح البخاري - الحافظ ابن حجر العسقلاني } \\
& \text { [2] سبل السلام شرح بلوغ المرام - الصنعاني }
\end{aligned}
$$

This [2] is a comprehensive book combining both hadeeth and fiqh.

$$
\begin{aligned}
& \text { [3] نيل الأوطار شرح منتقى الأخبار - الشو كاني } \\
& \text { [4] عمدة الأحكام - المقدسي }
\end{aligned}
$$

This [4] is a specialised book. In addition, the fact that all the abaadeeth mentioned are to be found in Saheeb al-Bukhaaree and Saheeh Muslim, means there is no need to search into their authenticity.
[5] الأربعين النووية - أبو زكرية النووي

This [5] is a good book, because it mentions etiquette and its approach is also good, as well as it mentioning some very important rules, such as the saying of the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam):

From a man's perfecting his religion is his leaving ## that which does not concern him. ${ }^{2}$

With this particular rule, if you were to make it a path you pursued, it would be enough for you. Like this, there is the rule regarding speech found in the saying of the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam):

Whoever believes in Allaab and the Last Day should speak good or remain quiet. ${ }^{3}$

[6] بلوغ المرام - الحافظ ابن حجر العسقلاني

This [6] is a most beneficial book, especially in that it mentions the narrators of the badeeth and who has made a narration sabeeb or da'eef, and he has also commented on the abaadeeth.
[7] غنبة الفكر - الحافظ ابن حجر العسقلاين

This [7] is a comprehensive book that, if the student of knowledge were to understand well and master, would be sufficient for him and better than many books in mustalab al-badeetb. Ibn Hajar has a beneficial approach in his works and that is dividing the different topics into appropriate parts and studying them thoroughly and carefully. So if the stu-

[^47]dent of knowledge were to read them, he would find it vibrant since it is based upon an active and investigative mind, and I further recommend the student of knowledge to memorise it because it is a most beneficial summary in mustalah al-hadeeth.

I also advise the student of knowledge to spend time reading the aforementioned books, since with them are two benefits:

Firstly: Referring to the principles;

Secondly: The recurrence of the names of the rijaal upon the mind. With this, if you were to pass by a name from amongst the narrators mentioned in Sabeeh al-Bukhaaree in any chain, then you will come to know it to be one of his narrators, and with this the student of knowledge will benefit.

Thirdly - Fiqh

[2][ [اد زاب المستقنع في إلى الصتصار المقنع - عمد بن عبدا الوهاو

This [2] is one of the best texts in fiqh and it is a blessed and comprehensive book．Our Shaykh，＇Abdur－Rahmaan as－Sa＇dee（rahima－bullaab） recommended we memorise this book，whilst he himself had memo－ rised the text of＂دليل الطالب»．

\begin{aligned}
& \text { [3] الروض المربع شرح زاد المستقنع - منصور البهوتي } \\
& \text { [4] عمدة الفقه - ابن قدامة }
\end{aligned}
$$

Fourthly－Faraa．id

[2] [1] متن البرهانية - محمد البرهـية الرجاين

This book［2］is a beneficial and comprehensive summary for all aspects of faraa．id．I find that «الرتن البرهانية»» is better than 《الرحبية because》الرحبية《 is more complete and comprehensive than »الرتن البرهانية《＂

Fifthly－Tafseer

[1] تفسير القر آن العظيم - ابن كثير

This book［1］is good with respect to tafseer and aathaar．However，it is not very vast in terms of i＇raab and balaaghah．
[2] تيسير الكريع الرحمن في تفسير كلام المنان - عبد الرحمن السعدي

This［2］is a good，easy and reliable book and I advise it be read．
[3] المقدمة في التفسير - شيخ الإسلام ابن تيمية

This book［3］is a very important introduction to the subject of tafseer．

[4] أضواء البيان - محمد الأمين الشنقيطي

This [4] is a comprehensive book incorporating all the fields of badeeth, fiqh, tafseer and usool al-fiqh.

6. General books on some areas

Naboo

[1] متن الآجرومية - الصنهاجي

This [1] is a short and simple book.
[2] ألفية ابن مالك - ابن مالك

This book [2] is a summary of the rules of naboo.
With respect to the life and times of the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam):
[3] زاد المعاد - ابن القيم

This [3] is a very beneficial book. The author relates the life of the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) in all circumstances whereby he derives from them many rulings.
[4] روضة العقلاء - ابن حبان البستي

This [4] is a beneficial and concise book in that it incorporates many points of benefit and traditions of the scholars, the mubaddithoon and other than them.
[5] سير أعلام النبالاء - الذهبي

This book [5] is beneficial and it is befitting for the student of knowledge to read and refer to it.

Appendices

Within this section there are two parts:

Appendix I

Sayings of the Imaams regarding following the Sunnab and ignoring their views contradictory to it

Appendix II

List of over 130 books
recommended for students of knowledge

Appendix III

List of over 300 further books
recommended for students of knowledge

Important Note: These appendices are not attributed to the authorship of the Noble Shaykb Muhammad ibn Saalih al-Uthaymeen. Rather, the translator has sourced and put together some very important material which will benefit the reader, and most importantly the sincere student of knowledge, inshaa.-Allaah.

Appendix I

Sayings of the Imaams regarding following the Sunnab and ignoring their views contradictory to it

Allaah, Mighty and Sublime, says:

Follow (0 men!) the revelation given to you from your Lord, and follow not, as friends and protectors, other than Him. Little is it you remember of admonition. ${ }^{1}$

1. Imaam Abu Haneefah (rabima-bullaab) $)^{2}$

The first of them is Abu Haneefah Nu'maan ibn Thaabit, whose companions have narrated from him various sayings and diverse warnings, all of them leading to one thing: the obligation to accept the Hadeeth, and to [^48]give up following the opinions of the Imaams which contradict it:

1. "When a badeeth is found to be sabeeh, then that is my madhhab."
2. "It is not permitted for anyone to accept our views if they do not know from where we got them."

In one narration, "It is probibited for someone who does not know my evidence to give verdicts on the basis of my words."

Another narration adds, "...for we are mortals: we say one thing one day, and take it back the next day."

In another narration, "Woe to you, O Ya'qoob! Do not write down everything you bear from me, for it happens that I hold one opinion today and reject it tomorrow, or hold one opinion tomorrow and reject it the day after tomorrow."
3. "When I say something contradicting the Book of Allaah the Exalted or what is narrated from the Messenger (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam), then ignore my saying."

2. Imaam Maalik ibn Anas (rabima-bullaab)

As for Imaam Maalik ibn Anas, he said:

1. "Truly I am only a mortal: I make mistakes (sometimes) and I am correct (sometimes). Therefore, look into my opinions: all that agrees with the Book and the Sunnah, accept it; and all that does not agree with the Book and the Sunnah, ignore it."
2. "Everyone after the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) will have his sayings accepted and rejected - not so the Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam)."
3. Ibn Wahb said: "I heard Maalik being asked about cleaning between the toes during ablution. He said, 'The people do not have to do that.' I did not approach bim until the crowd bad lessened, when I said to him, 'We know of a sumnah about that.' He said, 'What is that?' I said, 'Layth ibn Sa'd, Ibn Labee'ah and 'Amr ibn al-Haarith narrated to us from Yazeed ibn 'Amr al-Ma'aafiree from Abu 'Abdur-Rabman al-Hubulee from Mustawrid ibn Shaddaad al-Qurashee who said, 'I saw the Messenger of Allaab (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam) rubbing between bis toes with his little finger.' He said, 'This hadeeth is sound; I bad not heard of it at all until now.' Afterwards, I heard bim being asked about the same thing, on which be ordered cleaning between the toes."

3. Imaam ash-Shaaf'ee (rabima-bullaab)

As for Imaam ash-Shaafi'ee, the quotations from him are most numerous and beautiful, and his followers were the best in sticking to them:

1. "The Sunnabs of the Messenger of Allaab (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) reach, as well as escape from, every one of us. So whenever I voice my opinion, or formulate a principle, where sometbing contrary to my view exists on the authority of the Messenger of Allaab (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam), then the correct view is what the Messenger of Allaab (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam) bas said, and it is my view."
2. "The Muslims are unanimously agreed that if a Sunnah of the Messenger of Allaab (sal-Allaabu' 'alaybi wa sallam) is made clear to someone, it is not permitted for bim to leave it for the saying of anyone else."
3. "If you find in my writings something different to the Sunnab of the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam), then speak on the basis of the Sunnab of the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam), and leave what I have said."

In one narration: "...then follow it (the Sunnab), and do not look sideways at anyone else's saying."
4. "When a badeeth is found to be sabeeh, then that is my madhbab."
5. "You are more knowledgeable about Hadeeth than I, so when a badeeth is sabeeh, inform me of it, whether it is from Koofah, Basrab or Syria, so that I may take the view of the badeeth, as long as it is sabeeh."
6. "In every issue where the people of narration find a report from the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) to be sabeeh which is contrary to what I bave said, then I take my saying back, whether during my life or after my death."
7. "If you see me saying something, and contrary to it is authenticallyreported from the Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alaybi wa sallam), then know that my intelligence bas departed."
8. "For everything I say, if there is something authentic from the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) contrary to my saying, then the badeeth of the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) comes first, so do not follow my opinion."
9. "Every statement on the authority of the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) is also my view, even if you do not hear it from me."

4. Imaam Ahmad ibn Hanbal (rabima-hullaab)

Imaam Ahmad was the foremost among the Imaams in collecting the Sunnab and sticking to it, so much so that he even "disliked that a book consisting of deductions and opinions be written." Because of this he said:

1. "Do not follow my opinion; neither follow the opinion of Maalik, nor ash-Shaafi'e, nor Awzaa'ee, nor Thawree, but take from where they took."

In one narration: "Do not copy your Deen from anyone of these, but whatever comes from the Prophet (sal-Allaabu 'alayhi wa sallam) and bis companions, take it; next are their Successors, where a man bas a choice."

Once he said: "Following means that a man follows what comes from the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alayhi wa sallam) and his companions; after the Successors, he has a choice."
2. "The opinion of Awzaa'ee, the opinion of Maalik, the opinion of Abu Haneefah: all of it is opinion, and it is all equal in my eyes. However, the proof is in the narrations (from the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) and his companions)."
3. "Whoever rejects a statement of the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) is on the brink of destruction."

These are the clear, lucid sayings of the Imaams (rahima-bumullaab) about sticking to the Hadeeth and forbidding the following of their opinion without clearly-visible evidence, such that mere opinion and interpretation is not acceptable.

Hence, whoever adhered to whatever of the Sunnab that was proved authentic, even if it opposed some of the Imaams' sayings, he would not be conflicting with their madbhab, nor straying from their path; rather, such a person would be following all of them and would be grasping the most trustworthy hand-hold, which never breaks. However, this would not be the case with the one who abandoned any of the authentic Sunnah simply because it contradicted their views; nay, such a person would be being disobedient to them and opposing their above mentioned sayings, while Allaah says:

But no, by Your Lord, they can bave no (real) faith, until they make you judge in all disputes between them, and find in their souls no resistance against your decisions, but accept them with the fullest conviction. ${ }^{3}$

He also says:

Then let those beware who withstand the Messenger's order, lest some trial befall them or a grievous penalty be inflicted on them. ${ }^{4}$

[^49]al-Haafiz Ibn Rajab al-Hanbalee (rahima-bullaab) says:
"Therefore it is obligatory on anyone who hears of a command of the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) or knows it, to explain it to the Ummah, advise them sincerely, and order them to follow bis command, even if it contradicts the opinion of someone great. This is because the authority of the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaabu'alayhi wa sallam) has the most right to be respected and followed, over and above the opinion of anyone great who has unknowingly contradicted the Messenger's command in any matter. This is why the companions and those after would refute anyone who contradicted the authentic Sunnah, sometimes being very stern in their refutation, not out of hatred for that person, for they loved and respected him, but because the Messenger of Allaah was more beloved to them, and his command was superior to the command of any other created being. Hence, when the order of the Messenger and that of someone else conflicted, the order of the Messenger would be more fitting to be enforced and followed.

None of this would stop them respecting the person they had opposed because they knew that he would be forgiven; in fact, the latter would not mind his instruction being opposed when the command of the Messenger of Allaah (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) was clearly shown to be opposite."

Indeed, how could they mind that, when they had ordered their followers to do so, as we have seen, and had enjoined on them to abandon any of their views which contradicted the Sunnah. In fact, Imaam ashShaafi'ee (rahima-bullaab) told his companions to attribute the authentic Sunnab to him also, even if he had not adopted it or had adopted something contradictory to it. Hence, when the analyst Ibn Daqeeq al'Eed (rahima-bullaah) collected together, in a bulky volume, the issues in which one or more of the four Imaams' madhbabs had contradicted the authentic badeeth, he wrote at the beginning of it, "It is probibited to attribute these answers to the Mujtabid Imaams, and obligatory on the jurists who follow their opinions to know of these so that they do not quote them regarding these and thus lie against them."

To sum up: I sincerely hope that no follower of an Imaam will race to condemn the principles of this book and abandon benefiting from the sunnahs of the Prophet (sal-Allaahu 'alaybi wa sallam) which it contains, with the argument that they are contrary to his Madhbab. I hope that such a person will instead consider what we have given of the exhortations of the Imaams towards the obligation to act on the Sunnab and ignore their sayings contradictory to it. I hope also that he will realise that to condemn the attitude of this book is to condemn whichever Imaam he is following, for we have taken these principles from those Imaams, as we have explained. Therefore, whoever refuses to be guided by them on this path is in great danger, for such refusal necessitates turning away from the Sunnah, the Sunnab to which we have been ordered to refer in cases of difference of opinion and on which we have been commanded to depend.

I ask Allaah to make us among those about whom He says:

The answer of the believers, when summoned to Allaab and His Messenger, in order that be may judge between them, is no other than this: they say, "We hear and we obey" - it is such as these that will attain Success. It is those who obey Allaab and His Messenger, and fear Allaah, and keep their duty to Him, who will triumph. ${ }^{5}$

The Boolk of renowlesse

This book is intended to be an important companion to the sincere student of knowledge; highlighting the virtues of seeking knowledge, the etiquettes of doing so and the means which will assist in acquiring knowledge. Other areas covered include the important aspects of the paths to acquiring knowledge in addition to the mistakes against which precautions must be taken whilst seeking knowledge. A list of over 430 recommended books for students of knowledge has been compiled by the translator which will go a long way to assist the striving student of knowledge in building his/her library of important and authentic texts, inshaa.-Allaah.

It is highly recommended that no sincere student of knowledge be without their own copy of this book!

Shaykh Ibn Uthaymeen mentions: "There is no comparison between one who has knowledge and one who does not, just as there is no comparison between the living and the dead, and one who hears and one who is deaf, and one who can see and one who is blind.

Knowledge is light with which one is guided, and with it removes one from the darkness (of ighorance) to the light (of knowledge, i.e. Islaam).

With knowledge, Allaah raises the ranks of whom He wishes from His creation:
$\{$ Allaah will exalt in degree those of you who believe, and those who have been granted knowledge\}, [Soorah al-Mujaadilah, Aayah 11]"
